ATTACHMENT B LEGAL PROGRAM DESCRIPTION	FORM 990 PART III	Tax ID #94-2197343 Attachment BPacific Legal Foundation2007 Legal ProgramLegal ProgramThe legal program had another successful year in 2007 culminating with victories in all the PL F practice groups The Individual Rights Practice Group had a string of successes in 2007 PLF attorneys finally prevailed in defending the free speech rights of Andrew Smith against the Novato Unified School District The Districts attempt for review before the United States Supreme Court was denied February 19, 2008, and PLFs attorneys are now seeking attorneys fees of well over $1 million dollars Also, PLF attorneys are busy defending their victory in the California Supreme Court for the Schram and Coral Construction companies against the discriminatory policies of San Francisco PLF attorneys also are aggressively seeking attorneys fees of $732,574 arising out of another Proposition 209 victory against the City and County of San Francisco in the Cheresnik case The Property Rights Practice Group had another satisfying victory against the California Coastal Commission when the court found the Commissions assertion of jurisdiction over the Saint Catherine of Siena Catholic Schools plan to upgrade its buildings because they were close to a drainage course PLF attorneys continue to press a number of other cases ranging from challenges to inclusionary zoning, defending Arizonas property rights initiative, to eminent domain abuse (where we had a victory with an amicus brief in Metropolitan Water District v Campus Crusade for Christ) PLF attorneys also have one petition pending in the United States Supreme Court in Peters v Village of Clifton, defending the right of a farmer not to have his land taken for drainage ditches In our exactions project, 2007 was a year of getting new cases and appealing cases that were lost We have no decisions on appeal that would constitute victories we are either briefing or waiting for argument in Ocean Harbor House (seawall exaction by the California Coastal Commission) and Griswold (requirement to forego right to vote on assessments in exchange for permit) The Environment program participated in a significant victory in National Association of Home Builders v Defenders of Wildlife In that case, where PLF attorneys filed an amicus brief, the court ruled that EPA did not need to follow consultation procedures under the ESA when EPA granted the State of Arizona permitting authority under the Clean Water Act Because EPA had no discretion to deny the assumption of permitting authority, the ESA requirements were not triggered However, in Massachusetts v EPA, the court ruled that Massachusetts had standing to force EPA to make a decision on whether the Clean Air Act required EPA to regulate emissions that are alleged to cause climate change The Environmental Practice Group continues to litigate a plethora of Endangered Species Act and wetland jurisdiction cases A number of cases dealing with salmon listings currently are on appeal such as Western Watershed Project v Hall, where we received a favorable decision from the trial court on the listing of the mountain quail After the Supreme Court turned down our petition in Johnson v Corps of Engineers, we began representing the landowner in the trial court, seeking to lay the foundation for a reasonable interpretation of Rapanos The Endangered Species Act Project succeeded at long last in persuading the United States to delist the bald eagle Much work remains, however, as the United States now is attempting to restrict the use of property near eagle nests though the Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act of 1940a statute designed to protect eagles from hunting rather than from habitat development Building on our previous victory in California, a Florida federal court now has ordered the United States Fish and Wildlife to evaluate the listing of 87 species in accordance with the ESAs mandate of listing reviews every five years In the Pacific Northwest the battle continues over the protections afforded to salmon, despite the abundance of those fish The Free Enterprise Projects most significant victory came in In re Lead Paint, from the New Jersey Supreme Court, which is an excellent decision strongly following our argument that the use of the public nuisance tort to cover a mass products liability case would render that tort unconstitutionally vague Another success was Philip Morris v Williams, a Supreme Court case in which we argued that the Oregon Supreme Court should not retroactively define conduct as criminal when it was legal when it was engaged in, and thereby increase the punitive damages The Free Enterprise Project likewise racked up several victories with its amicus work In Castaneda v Olsher, the California Supreme Court decision held that a mobile home park owner was not liable to a tenant who was shot by stray gunfire during a gang-related altercation, we filed an amicus curiae brief in support of the property owner And in Iseberg v Gr

And in DaimlerChrysler v. Inman, the Texas Supreme Court held that automobile owners who suffer no injury from an alleged seat belt defect have no right to sue PLFs. Program for Judicial Awareness was responsible for the publication of eighteen law review articles that should provide the basis for legal arguments in PLFs areas of focus. National Program: The Pacific Northwest Center scored a major victory in Biggers v. City of Bainbridge where the Washington Supreme Court ruled in favor of property owners in interpreting the States Growth Management Act. And in Swinomish Indian Tribal Community v. Western Washington Growth Management Hearing s Board the same court ruled in favor of an interpretation of the Act that does not unduly elevate ecological values over the rights of property owners. This case will likely set the threshold for all Growth Management Act cases in the state. Much attention currently is being devoted to defending the right of landowners to protect their property with seawalls (Luhrs), to be allowed to maintain a retaining wall near the Canadian border (Leu), and the right of a local government to build a playground free from unwarranted interference from the Corps of Engineers (Fairbanks North Star Borough). The Atlantic Center successfully challenged an attempt by the city to condemn private homes in Riviera Beach, Florida, to make way for an upscale retail development. In fact, due to adverse publicity arising out of this eminent domain abuse, the city council was turned out of office. PLF attorneys also have recently filed a challenge to the listing of the Perdido Key mouse. In addition the Atlantic Center achieved a major victory for landowners in Trepanier, defending their rights against trespass caused by beach driving. And in Florida Homebuilders v. U.S. Department of Fish &amp; Wildlife, PLF attorneys won a ruling that the government must review the status of a long list of threatened and endangered species. Other pending cases include challenges to unlawful road impact exactions (North Port), the taking of private property (Shands), and inclusionary zoning (Florida Homebuilders v. Tallahassee). The Hawaii Center continues to protect the interests of landowners in maintaining the right to their riparian lands. We argued before the Hawaii Supreme Court for the right of the citizens of Kauai to amend their charter for the purpose of lowering property taxes. Likewise will be participating in a challenge to inclusionary zoning in Maui, where the county is demanding an extraordinary tribute of over $100,000 for each market rate unit built.

TY 2007 Scholarship Award Statement

Name: PACIFIC LEGAL FOUNDATION

EIN: 94-2197343

Statement: The Program for Judicial Awareness invites students enrolled in law schools in the United States to submit original, publishable essays related to one or more of the Legal Objectives of Pacific Legal Foundation. The successful essay, suitable for publication in a law review or comparable academic journal, should draw together issues of public policy, matters of constitutional interpretation, and current legal precedent to postulate how statutes or policies should be applied in order to protect freedom & def free enterprise. Junior faculty program parallels the student essay comp.
