LIBRARIAN'S REPORT

OFFICE OF THE STATE LIBRARIAN,
Des Moines, Iowa, June 30, 1912.

To the Honorable B. F. Carroll,
Governor of Iowa and President of the Board of Trustees of the Iowa State Library:

Sir: I have the honor to submit for your consideration a report for the year 1912 covering the last biennial period, between the first day of July, 1910, and the thirtieth day of June, 1912.

NUMBER OF BOOKS IN LIBRARY.

At the date of my last report, June 30, 1910, there were, of record, in the Miscellaneous (or General) and Law Departments of the State Library 112,219 volumes.

On the 30th day of June, 1912, the total of record in these departments was 120,378. Total accessions during the biennial period 8,159. Of these 6,004 represent the additions to the Miscellaneous (or General) Library, and 2,155 the additions to the Law Library.

The law provides for a separate report from the Curator of the Historical Department. My statement of the financial condition of this department appears on pages 16-19 of this report.

LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE.

The State Library has for several years been collecting a large amount of printed and written material with special reference to actual and possible use in the preliminary work of legislation. In order to make this material practically available in the work of legislation, it was found necessary to arrange and index it with special reference to its direct or remote bearing upon problems of legislation. It was found to be necessary also to make a collection of books, documents, pamphlets, and other material for immediate use by legislators and those interested in legislation. To this end the Legislative Bureau has accumulated on its shelves in the south portion of the Law Library, a collection of several thousand works drawn from the General Library, and acquired by purchase.

The Thirty-fourth General Assembly wisely increased the appropriation of the Law Department of the State Library from $4,000 to $6,000, thus materially strengthening that department and at the same time enabling the Library Board to set apart, tentatively, from that appropriation the sum of $1,000 annually for the uses of the Legislative Reference Bureau. This sum has been spent by the librarian for the purchase of sociological works, including mainly those covering economic themes and legislative problems, and the appropriation has thus far proved ample for the uses of the Bureau. Prior to this appropriation the books had been purchased from the regular appropriation of the General Library to the serious detriment of that department. With the Law Library materially strengthened and the Legislative Bureau in connection therewith enabled to acquire works (more or less expensive) directly and indirectly bearing upon legislation, the value of this Bureau, backed as it is by the Law Department, has been greatly enhanced within the past two years. The State Library every year represents a larger and larger investment of the State's money. This investment is good in proportion to the amount of service rendered by the library. Any increase in the cost of administration which results in a more than proportionate increase in the quality of service rendered, is clearly a saving to the State. In the librarian's judgment no better investment of the State's funds could possibly have been made, relatively, than the money set aside by the Library Board for the Legislative Reference Bureau.

The work of the Legislative Reference Bureau of the State Library naturally falls under three divisions: (1) the building up of the collection and the acquisition of general sociological works, documents, pamphlets, clippings, etc.; (2) the classifying and indexing of this material; (3) the personal activities of the reference librarian. Regard must be had to the various classes of persons concerned, in following out the long process of crystallizing a political idea into an actual statute. Every class has its peculiar needs and every one must be served with equal faithfulness. Miss Mary Rosemond who from the first has been directly connected with the Legislative Reference Bureau as an adjunct of the Law Department of the State Library, has, at my request, outlined the constructive work of the Bureau and her outline is well worth quoting in this connection. Miss Rosemond says:

"First comes the thinker, the scientific investigator, who collects and arranges social facts, and formulates political theories. He requires books new and old, covering a wide range of suggestion and information, far wider than those which are classified under the general head of Sociology. He knows his books, and knows the bibliography of his special field far better than the librarian can know them. All the library can do is to supply the books he requires. After the student of theories, come the many who are interested in public affairs and in some way or another help in making that public opinion which finally results in the drawing of a bill. To this class belong the newspaper men, members of civic associations, club members, and thinking and public-spirited people generally. These are not always served by the literature which is indispensable to the scholar. The literature crystallized in the magazines and the newspapers is often what they require. Those of this class have far greater need of the reference librarian than the class first named, and they are just as much entitled to the services of the librarian as those of the other class, and their indirect influence on legislation is a factor in the process which may not be discoverable on the surface but cannot well be over-estimated. Finally, we must consider that important class who are directly engaged in legislation. In the special needs of this class originated the Legislative Reference Bureau. The needs of this class are distinctively different from those of the scholar, the special student or the general investigator. With legislators there can be no leisurely study, no reading of books from cover to cover. They are working under high pressure and the library renders them a distinct service in enabling them to find in the quickest and surest manner any given fact or suggestion wherewith to answer questions as they present themselves in argument or debate, either in the committee room or on the floor of the Senate or House. The more concise the argument, the simpler form in which the facts are stated or the suggestions presented, the better the material for this class of readers.

"Moreover, the information must be the very latest. Last week's statistics are better than last year's. To meet the special needs of legislators is the chief business of the Legislative Reference

Bureau. Therefore, the Bureau must, in the interim between sessions, be on the lookout for both new and out-of-print books bearing upon the subjects likely to be considered by future legislatures, recommending to the librarian the purchase of such works as have permanent or ever temporary value. These, with the General Library and the Law Library at all times accessible, form the solid background of reference material. To these must be added pamphlets, newspaper clippings, letters, chapters torn from duplicate books, articles from magazines, etc. While the books to which reference has been made must be thoroughly classified, the other material to which reference has also been made is best indexed—not catalogued. With this material the scientific rules of classification essential in other departments of library activities, must be disregarded. Everything which will enable the reference librarian to hunt down the desired fact or answer a given question, is worthy of a reference in the index.

“To secure quick service all material of a particular problem must be brought together in a compact form. Vertical filing cases are used for classifying newspaper clippings, bills, laws, type-written articles, leaves from books and magazines, and pamphlet material. The material is thus kept clean, is in compact form, and is quickly available. The legislator, making his want known to the reference librarian, is likely to find at once a quantity of articles, pamphlets and references giving him the matter leading to the information he desires. If, on the other hand, the users had to select this material from entries in the card catalog, and then wait for volumes to be collected from all parts of the State Library, the same information might cost him several hours of precious time instead of a few minutes. In most cases the direct recourse to books would be to the busy legislator prohibitive and the librarian would thus lose the opportunity to serve.”

THE LAW DEPARTMENT.

I take pleasure in noting the progress made in the Law Department of the Library, in which department are included Public Documents and the Legislative Reference Bureau. Mr. Small, my assistant in charge of this important branch of library activities, reports that while the number of accessions during the last biennial period has not been large (though the appropriation has been increased), the purchases made by him, with the approval of the Library Board,—over and above the steadily increasing cost of continuing regular sets to which the department is committed—have chiefly been made in the acquisition of out-of-print and costly publications, filling in sets of session laws, foreign codes, also rare general works which have added materially to the library's valuable general collection known and classified as “Literature of the Law.” These works are becoming more rare with every year and the prices put upon them are steadily increasing.

Many of the sets and single works added to the Law Library early in the present administration have increased in value more than fourfold—some of them even more than tenfold. It is equally apparent that the scarcity and the price will continue to increase, for where there were few American buyers of out-of-print books a dozen years ago, there are many now and the number is continually increasing as library appropriations increase.

The Law Librarian reports that “special effort has been made during the past two years towards completing, classifying, and arranging the document material housed in the Capitol building. Hundreds of letters have been sent out to all parts of the country and to foreign lands, asking for an exchange of documents. As a result, probably five thousand reports have been received. Many of the department reports are in pamphlet form. These are collected into volumes of a reasonable size as fast as we can complete a sufficient number of consecutive years. This entails much painstaking labor and considerable expense in the binding.

“Not only do we collect and collate state and national publications,” he adds, “but also those of societies and associations organized for original research and investigation. The latter oft-times contain articles and data upon special subjects of inestimable value.”

This marked progress made in the collecting of documents was made possible by the last General Assembly by the assignment of a stenographer to the Law Department. Regular correspondence work has been supplemented by the making of book-lists, the copying of bibliographies prepared by the Law Librarian, with the aid of his assistant, Mrs. Russell, and the checking, arranging, and collecting of documents as they are received.

In addition to the increased exchanges of documents, the Law Librarian has effected valuable exchanges of laws and law reports. Progress in making exchanges with foreign governments—other than the English—has been very slow; but it is hoped that in the near future an exchange with the German Empire at least may be effected.

The recent increase in the appropriation for the Law Department, while shared with the Legislative Reference Bureau, has been found to be ample for the present needs of the department, enabling the librarian not only to continue the sets to which the department is committed and to buy current law texts, but to subscribe for all current law periodicals; while the sum set apart for the Legislative Reference Bureau enables the librarian to buy the more valuable current and out-of-print works on sociological themes and to subscribe for all the leading periodicals making a specialty of sociological themes and economic questions—periodicals likely to be considered from the legislator's standpoint.

The greatest need of the Law Department, as reported by its librarian, is an increase in its working force. He says: "Stacks of books are of but little practical use unless they are well drawn out under topics and digested. In this age of rapid activities, libraries, like departments of business life, must be prepared to serve the public well and quickly; in other words, reach the subject desired by simply turning to chapter and paragraph, rather than the perusal of volumes for a single thought. To do this we must increase our working force."

The Law Librarian makes two recommendations which I would be greatly pleased to see embodied in the Governor's message to the incoming General Assembly, namely:

(1) The preparation and publication of a general cumulative index to the session laws of our state. "It frequently happens" he says, "that reference is made to our early laws, the indexes to which are defective and poorly arranged. After consuming much time in a page by page examination of these early publications, the individual is left in doubt as to whether something may not have escaped his notice and if he has all the information available upon a given subject after the long, tiresome search has been made. The making of this index would involve much time and painstaking labor. If worth doing at all, it is worth doing well and the Curator believes the benefits derived would warrant its undertaking."

(2) The indexing, by subjects and authors, of the bills presented to former General Assemblies. This is extremely desirable for legislative reference information and research investigation.

These recommendations meet with my hearty approval.

THE GENERAL LIBRARY.

The additions to the General Library during the last biennial period include many rare and valuable works.

It is well to re-state from time to time the general purposes of the librarian in the selection of books for purchase. Some of the books added to the library are necessarily current works ultimately to be superseded by later works. But few of these are without some permanent value, for most at least mark the advance of thought, investigation, discovery and conclusions from one milestone of progress to another. But the main purpose of the librarian is to procure the books of permanent value which are not usually found either in private or circulating libraries. Works of this class are out-of-print books which, though time-tried and of unquestioned value, are not sufficiently popular with modern book-buyers to warrant the thrifty publishers of our time in entailing the large expense of issuing new editions; also, certain voluminous and necessarily high-priced sets which few individuals have room for, or can afford to buy, or would find it expedient to acquire,—sets of great value for research work, and which the public has a right to expect to find in the reference library of the State. Among sets of this class are: "The Victoria History of the Counties of England," sixty volumes of which are already issued, additions to which have been coming to the State Library at the rate of about five volumes a year for the past twelve years, and which will doubtless continue to come at about the same rate during the next twelve years; the Biographical Dictionary (London), a monumental work with which the names of Leslie Stephen and Sydney Lee are inseparably connected, sixty-eight volumes in all, including the supplemental volumes; the standard encyclopedias in their latest editions; full sets of the leading scientific and literary periodicals, etc., etc. There surely ought to be one library in the State in which these expensive and extremely valuable works are available to the scholar, the student, the publicist, and the general public.

Among the standard works added to the General Library during the last biennial period are: Hansard's Parliamentary Debates, sixty volumes, continuing the set of several hundred volumes already in the library; The London Times History of the War in South Africa, four volumes; the Historical Atlas of Modern Europe; Ralph Waldo Emerson's Journals, six volumes, the set not yet complete; Catalogue Raisonne of the works of the most eminent Dutch, Flemish and French painters, nine volumes; Columbia University Studies in History, Economics and Public Law, forty-five volumes in all; Wraxall's Historical and Posthumous Memoirs, five volumes; English Catalogue of Books, 1863-97, four volumes; Milman's History of Christianity, three volumes; Cabinet of Poetry six volumes; John Fox,—Acts and Monuments (Book of Martyrs), A. D. 1641, three volumes; Massinger's Dramatick works, A. D. 1761, four volumes; Ogilby's Virgil, A. D. 1684; Original Letters and Papers concerning the affairs of England, A. D. 1739, two volumes; Monthly Mirror (London), 1795-1810, fifteen volumes; The Bee, an Edinburgh periodical, eighteen volumes, 1790-94; the New England Farmer, twenty volumes, 1826-45; the Literature of Italy, sixteen volumes; a pioneer work on insurance by Perham, "Illustrating the Science of Insurance;" Journal of the Statistical Society of London, forty-eight volumes, 1840-1908; the new 11th edition, Encyclopedia Britannica, twenty-eight volumes; Catholic Encyclopedia, fifteen volumes, the set not yet complete; a definitive edition of Herbert Spencer, eighteen volumes; Bayle's General Dictionary, Historical and Critical, ten folio volumes, 1734; Bibliophile Library of Literature, Art and rare Manuscripts, thirty volumes; Statesman's Year Book, thirty-five volumes, 1807-88, etc., etc.

With the recent increase in appropriation for the General Library, it is now possible by careful selection and unremitting study of the world-market for the out-of-print books, to increase immeasurably the usefulness of the General Library to the State.

By comparatively recent arrangement with the Library of Congress, and with other great reference libraries, we are now enabled to borrow rare works not in our library for the use of students, scholars, legislators and others making special study of themes, or special investigation of conditions. I have availed myself of this advantage in many instances to the great convenience and satisfaction of many, and would make mention of the Librarian of Congress, Dr. Putnam, and the librarian of the John Crerar Library of Chicago, Dr. Andrews, to whom I am specially indebted for the loan of many rare and extremely valuable works.

The General Library and the Legislative Reference Bureau are pleased at all times to respond to requests from the Iowa Library Commission for the loan of books and pamphlets to supply the wants of the libraries of the State, and of clubs and individuals requesting loans through local libraries, thus helpfully correlating their work with that of the Commission. As an ex officio member, and officer of that body, I am pleased to note the growing tendency toward the coordination of these two branches of the State's library activities.

My First Assistant, Miss Lee, notes a steady increase in the growth and usefulness of the General Library, or General Reference Department of the State Library, during the last biennial period, adding: "The Library is becoming more and more a recognized aid to the several departments of the State government. By the people throughout the State it is looked upon as a library of practical value for them, and an institution in which they have a personal interest and to which they have a personal welcome. The different branches of work are being continued along standard lines as rapidly as possible with the limited assistance at the disposal of the library."

Though I would not measure the usefulness of the General Library by the number of those who consult it—preferring rather to estimate it by the quality and value of the service rendered—yet it is not without suggestion to the Board and to the General Assembly, in connection with my plea for more assistance, that the approximately correct report of my first assistant in this respect be given in this connection. Her report by months shows the total number of persons consulting this department of the library from July, 1911, to June, 1912, inclusive, to have been 16,358—an increase of 4.591 over the number of the previous year. The total reported for the last biennial period was 28,125.

CATALOGING.

Miss Steele, cataloger, reports that during the biennial period covered by this report, July, 1910, June, 1912, of the 6,004 volumes added to the library, 5,084 have been classified and cataloged, the remaining number being government and state documents. During this period two valuable helps to the cataloger have appeared, i. e., the 7th edition of the Dewey Decimal classification, and the 1911 revision of the A. L. A. list of subject headings. The latter is specially helpful on account of the addition of many new subjects which have come into use as the result of unusual progress in the sciences, and the development along economic and sociological lines. It has been impossible during the last year for the cataloger to keep pace with the growing work of the department. It is urged that at least one-half time of a regular assistant be allowed to this department in order that the work may be kept adequately up to date.

BINDING AND REPAIRING.

Miss Cooper, of the General Library Staff, reports that since July 1, 1910, the Miscellaneous department has had bound the following number of volumes: Periodicals, 590; books, 82; society publications, 110; documents, 97; library bulletins, 11; college catalogs, 63; total, 953.

This department has had repaired 306 books and 117 periodicals; total, 423 volumes rebound or otherwise put in order. This gives a grand total of 1,376 volumes bound or repaired. The total cost of this work was $1,519.85.

GENERAL REMARKS.

I would make especial mention of the faithful and efficient services of Miss Minnie E. Hess, bookkeeper for the three departments of the State Library, and stenographer for the librarian. There is not a position in the State service imposing so great a responsibility with so little pay. In the consideration of the question of salaries, I would respectfully urge that the Board recommend to the incoming Committee on Retrenchment and Reform a just equalization of the departmental salaries to be fixed by them.

The librarian would acknowledge his indebtedness to all the members of his staff in the several departments, to whose prompt and efficient coöperation he is indebted for the present high standard of efficiency maintained in the State Library; also to the members of the Library Board whose interest in his work and whose advice and support have enabled him to administer the details of the several departments with an encouraging degree of success.

The plans I have long entertained for the development of library activities, not only in the Capitol building, but also in the new and commodious Historical Building, have been deferred from one biennial period to another, mainly because the Legislative Committee on Retrenchment and Reform for several successive sessions, after courteously inviting me to make known the wants of the Library, have refused to accord the Law Library more than one assistant and the General Library more than two assistants. The fact that my second assistant is detailed for service in the Law Library, seems to be overlooked in the assignment of additional assistants for the General Library and has not accrued to the advantage of the Law Library.

As you know, the books of the General Library occupy two floors and a mezzanine, or middle floor. To detail one of the two general library assistants for service on the second floor is to leave the first and mezzanine floors at a serious disadvantage, the demands of the public frequently rendering it simply impossible for the two assistants to meet and respond to those demands. There are many times when several more assistants—if I had them—might be continuously employed in attending to the wants of the public. As it is, we are frequently compelled to draw the library cataloger from her work to meet emergencies, thus rendering it impossible for her to keep down to date with the cataloging of new books.

Other obstacles to progress might be overcome by action of the Library Board, were the number of library assistants adequate to enable that body to act. I shall again respond to the biennial invitation to make known the wants of the library, in the hope that the next General Assembly will see the necessity of making the State's splendid General Library—one of the best in the country—as efficient as it ought to be and might be, with two more assistants, one for the second floor and one to relieve the congestion on the first. Relatively to the number of books in the General Library, I know of no library, State or city, that has so few assistants. I am expected to administer on the General Library with the number of assistants we had when we moved that branch over from the State House—though since that time we have added many thousand books to that department. And now, with a larger appropriation than formerly, we shall be able to add over 4,000 books a year to the General Library. In any other business activity, an increase of the stock to be handled would be accompanied by an increase of assistance in the handling. Why should not this reasonable business rule be applied to our State Library? It is generally applied to other libraries. I would respectfully request the President and members of the Library Board to present the needs of the State Library to the Committee on Retrenchment and Reform next winter, that that body may clearly see that my response to its inquiries is not the usual perfunctory request for more places to fill; but actually springs from a great and growing necessity.

Following this general statement of conditions in the library appears my biennial financial report, also an author's list of books, documents, etc., which have been added during the last biennial period.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHNSON BRIGHAM,
State Librarian.
