Project Bread’s Leadership Circle is comprised of a special group of individual donors who make an extra commitment to those facing hunger in Massachusetts. Their generosity has helped make it possible to provide lifesaving support to emergency food and hunger prevention programs throughout the state. They also made it possible for Project Bread to research and develop innovative solutions to end hunger. This list acknowledges gifts made between June 1, 2008, and May 31, 2009.

“I support Project Bread because I believe in its ability to successfully gain ground in defeating the problem of hunger in our communities. Project Bread combines research with innovative programming and direct service in a way that is fascinating and unlike any other organization I know.”

chief legal officer and secretary, State Street Corporation
executive director of Project Bread

Meryl Appelbaum, center, at the 2009 Walk for Hunger with 7NEWS anchor Frances Rivera, Lisa Goldfinger, Sydney Appelbaum, and Alicia Santiago

“Our kids have been doing the Walk for Hunger with us since they were in strollers. Now, at 11 and 14, they have gotten their friends involved as well. Through Project Bread and their participation in the Walk, they’ve learned that many people in Massachusetts are hungry and that the need is greater now than ever.”

— Meryl Appelbaum, individual contributor and Bread & Lights committee chair

“All good organizations do good things, but working with Project Bread has enabled me to see and experience a vision, a scope of services, and a respect for hungry people that I find uniquely inspiring. I can say that, as a board member, individual contributor, and Heart & Sole Walker, each encounter with this organization gives me a deeper belief that, working together, we can end hunger in Massachusetts.”

“During the economic downturn, more families than ever are struggling to provide their children with healthy meals. This is especially true during the summer when school is out and students lose access to the daily meals provided by their schools. The Summer Food Service Program is a way to improve the quality of the lives of these children by fulfilling the urgent need for regular nutritional meals.”

Heart & Sole Walkers

“For the past 20 years, The Walk for Hunger has been a Spring ritual for me. As soon as I return from the Kickoff Breakfast, my pledge sheet goes up at work and I begin my preparation for the Walk. I have walked in all kinds of weather, with family, friends, and even alone. Each year is a different event. Even though I may be tired during the Walk, I continue on to the finish line. Knowing that many local families benefit from this event helps make the Walk a little easier. We always end the day saying we will do it again next year.”

— Karen Allschwang, Heart & Sole Walker, shown here with her husband, Jay S. Allschwang, Heart & Sole Walker. They raised a total of $2,245 for the 2009 Walk for Hunger.

“I have walked with community members for 23 years and have felt that the Walk is an important part of my community. This year, I was a little nervous about asking for donations because of the poor economy. However, I found that many people saw that even though they were tightening their belts, there were others who were in much greater need. I had longtime Walk sponsors tell me that they should give a little more this year, because the need was so much greater.”

“Every year I walk is a new opportunity to raise awareness of the problem of hunger in our communities. By continuously setting my fundraising goal higher than the year before, I am challenging myself and my friends and family to not only recognize the problem, but to be a part of the solution. I never cease to be amazed at how generous they are year after year in their support of my participation. At this point, I couldn’t skip a Walk even if I wanted to! Being a part of the Walk renews my faith that things can and will get better.”

“Each year, Project Bread’s Walk for Hunger means more to me. Since I started walking in 1988, it’s become a part of my life and a way to give back to those less fortunate. It’s also become a tradition for our state — a tradition rooted in the innate qualities of human nature — compassion, kindness, and concern. It thrills me to be part of something this big!”

Heart & Sole Walkers are a group of dedicated participants who raise a minimum of $500 for each Walk. In 2009, Heart & Sole Walkers raised nearly $1.6 million to relieve and eliminate hunger in Massachusetts.

Project Bread strives to be as accurate as possible in listing our supporters. We appreciate your help in correcting any errors or omissions.

2009 Board of Directors

7NEWS Anchor Anne Allred and the Honorable Therese Murray, Senate President (top left), stand with Project Bread's Board of Directors: The Honorable Robert E. Travaglini, Thomas P. O'Neill III, James E. Rooney, Timothy J. O'Brien, Marla M. Capozzi, Ellen Parker, and Steve Grossman.

We gratefully acknowledge the unflagging support and inspired vision of our board of directors.

“Even as we face these difficult times let’s keep the faith and redouble our efforts. Hunger cannot take a backseat on our agenda. When one child goes hungry, it is our responsibility as human beings — not just lawmakers, not just activists — to make sure that we do everything we can do to help. That’s our cause, that’s our mission . . . that’s your mission.”

“You are the hope and the help that drives everybody every day behind the scenes to make sure that this annual rite of Spring continues with its luster, with its attractiveness, and with its ability to generate millions of dollars. It changes the lives of people we are never going to meet, but who are going to go to bed at night having had a hot meal. That’s the mission. People don’t wake up in the morning and say: ‘I want to be hungry; I want to be poor; I want to be undereducated.’ But you know, if you are hungry, all of that is connected. This is what Ellen and the staff tries to change.”

“We understand the impact of hunger. We see a correlation between hunger, poverty, and obesity, particularly childhood obesity. Hunger is a health issue.”

Boston Mayor Thomas M. Menino joins Project Bread Board members Mitch Appelbaum, William F. Kennedy, Ellen Parker, Marla M. Capozzi, and the Honorable Robert E. Travaglini at the 2009 Walk for Hunger

“The Walk for Hunger is the foundation and soul of Project Bread — it influences everything we do and is part of everything we achieve. I think of it as the doorway into our work — it generates millions of dollars in private philanthropy and provides us with an amazing range of relationships and ideas and partners that give us the flexibility and creative energy to be forward thinking and innovative in the ways that we work to end hunger in Massachusetts.”
