WESTERN TEAM

DEMONSTRATIONS—AMERICAN FOOTBALL AND LACROSSE

THE Protocol provides that the Olympic Organizing Committee may arrange demonstrations in two Sports not included in the programme of competitions:

- (1) A National Sport of the country in which the Games are held;
- (2) A Sport foreign to the organizing country.

THE FOOTBALL DEMONSTRATION

American Football was decided on as the National Sport to be demonstrated at the Xth Olympiad. It was chosen because it is a game played almost exclusively in the United States, and because it is primarily an amateur sport enjoying its greatest development and interest in the schools and colleges of this country.

The Universities of Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, in the East, and the Universities of California, Stanford, and Southern California, in the West, officially approved the plan of the Committee to organize two Football teams, one representing the Eastern institutions, and the other the Western, to meet at a demonstration game of Football on the evening of August 8.

In order not to interfere in any way with the athletic programme of the institutions involved, only graduating seniors at each university who had completed their football competition were selected for the teams.

The officials for the American Football Demonstration were:

East Team

T.A.D. Jones (former Yale coach), Chairman of Coaching Committee
 Mal Stevens (Yale), Advisory Coach
 Henry W. Clark (Harvard), Advisory Coach
 Nelson Poe (Princeton), Advisory Coach
 Adam Walsh (Yale), Line Coach
 George Connors (Yale), Trainer
 Harold F. Woodcock (Yale), Manager

West Team

Howard H. Jones (Southern California), Chairman of Coaching Committee
 Glenn S. Warner (Stanford), Advisory Coach
 W. A. Ingram (California), Advisory Coach
 Dr. Walter R. Fieseler, Medical Supervisor
 William W. Anderson (Occidental), Advisory Coach
 J. Phil Ellsworth, Manager of Football Demonstration and West Team

The complete roster of players for the American Football Demonstration was as follows:

Robert H. Hall

The members of both teams were assembled in the Olympic Village several weeks before the opening of the Games and lived there under the same conditions as all other athletes.

The game was played as nearly as possible under the same conditions as the regulation game of American Intercollegiate Football. The massed Olympic bands and the Olympic Chorus formed a large white block in the seats at one side of the Stadium similar to the "rooting" section which has become a tradition of American Football, and the songs of the institutions represented were played and sung. Between halves the Olympic Band staged a musical marching spectacle on the field, coupled with massed singing by the Chorus.

The game itself was a remarkably fine exhibition of American Football. Individual players were in splendid condition and teamwork was of a calibre hardly to be expected in midsummer from players chosen from different colleges.

Marked offensive superiority was shown by the Western team in the first half, and only the stalwart defensive play of the Easterners, who staved off threatened scores three times, kept the teams on an even basis at half time. The half ended in spectacular fashion when the Eastern team, which had been on the defensive the entire first two periods, suddenly rallied and a long pass from Taylor to Crickard was completed just as the gun sounded, only a spectacular tackle by Rintala of the Western team preventing a touchdown for the East.

The second half of the game progressed without serious threat by either team until, early in the fourth quarter, the Eastern team secured the ball in Western territory and Mays attempted a goal from the field. The kick was short and bounced around on the Western 10-yard line where two of the defensive players touched it momentarily, making it a free ball. Burton Strange, of the Eastern team, swooped down on the ball, caught it on the bounce, and carried it across the goal line for the first touchdown of the contest. Goal was missed, leaving the score, East 6, West 0.

With only a few minutes left to play, the Western team pulled itself together, and headed by Gaius Shaver, one of the country's greatest football players, commenced a terrific attack on the Eastern line. Taking the ball on their own 35-yard line, with Shaver carrying the ball on practically every play, the Westerners plunged straight down the field, climaxing their drive with a dashing run by Shaver which carried the ball from the East's 23-yard line to the 4-yard mark, where he was forced out of bounds.

Here the East staged another spectacular stand, their fourth of the game inside the 5-yard line. Shaver made two yards on the first play and approached within a foot of the goal line on the second. Shaver's third plunge made a bare six inches and the great crowd had vision of another successful stand by the East, but on the fourth play Shaver dived head first across the line for a touchdown and Kirwan kicked the goal that won the game by the score of West 7, East 6.

It was a spectacular contest with fine individual and team play, a wide variety of running plays, and a reasonably successful forward passing attack. It could hardly have been a better demonstration of the American game.

The foreign athletes and press representatives were interested in the game but bewildered by its complexity. The consensus of foreign opinion was that American Football is a hard, bruising physical combat with a little too much emphasis on complicated technique. Most of the visitors commented chiefly on the great amount of time out and the numerous substitutions.

The lineups for the American Football Demonstration were:

	West (7)	East (6)

THE LACROSSE DEMONSTRATION

Lacrosse was chosen as the demonstration of a sport foreign to the organizing country. Although Lacrosse is played in the Eastern United States, it is little known to the western section in which the Games were held. The Committee wished to take advantage of the opportunity to demonstrate this interesting game to the people of the community as well as to the many foreign visitors unfamiliar with it. Mr. Charles L. Ornstein and Mr. Lewis Jay Korn, representing the American Lacrosse Associations, undertook the task of organizing the demonstration. The Lacrosse Team of Johns Hopkins University was chosen to represent the United States and an all-star team was chosen to represent Canada.

The officials for the Lacrosse Demonstration were:

United States Team		Canadian Team
William Roe Kahl, Team Manager		A. E. Lyon, President
Ray Van Orman, Coach		Dan McKenzie, Coach
Lewis J. Korn, Referee		A. Gordon Spring, Coach

The complete roster of players for the Lacrosse Demonstration was as follows:

Norman A. Gair	Yvan Paquin

The teams were assembled in the Olympic Village and lived there under the same conditions as all other athletes.

Three games of Lacrosse were played, on the afternoons of August 7, 9, and 12, respectively. The games were all well contested, any individual superiority possessed by the Canadians being offset by the cohesion of the American squad, who had played together as a team throughout the season. The Americans captured the opening contest, which was played before approximately 75,000 spectators on Sunday, the day of the historic Marathon. The score of the first game was 5 to 3.

Canada's aggressive players reversed the decision in the second game, which was the most fiercely contested of the series. The score was tied at 4 all just a moment before the end of the contest, when, with a supreme effort, Canada shot the deciding goal.

The deciding game of the series was played before a large audience. The second half had to be shortened to fifteen minutes in order to permit the Canadian team to catch their home steamer, which was held more than an hour after sailing time, for their accommodation. The Americans showed notable skill and teamwork and were victorious 7 to 4, thus winning the series two games to one, with a total score of 16 goals to 12.

All participants in the Football and Lacrosse Demonstrations were awarded diplomas and commemorative medals.

ART COMPETITIONS AND EXHIBITION

DURING the era of the modern Olympiads it has been natural for the Sports phases of the Games to become emphasized in the public mind. However, in the revival of the modern Games the founders of the new movement instituted competitions in the Arts alongside of the Sports, just as they were associated in the ancient Grecian festivals. It has been more difficult to forward the Art competitions, but the Olympic organizations have not failed to recognize their responsibility and to give full weight to the value of preserving and encouraging the cultural side of the Games.

With this responsibility in mind, the Organizing Committee gave early attention to the organization of the Art Competitions, this item being the first definitely provided for in the budget, almost three years before the celebration of the Games. The next step was the appointment of General Charles H. Sherrill, member of the International Olympic Committee for the United States and a recognized leader in the advancement of the Olympic Arts, as chairman of the special committee to undertake the organization of this important activity of the Games of the Xth Olympiad. In formulating plans, it was decided to follow the example of previous Olympiads and include an Exhibition of Art in connection with the prescribed Art Competitions.

The American Federation of Arts in Washington was consulted by General Sherrill, and Mr. Homer Saint-Gaudens, Director of the Art Department of the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, was requested to make an estimate of the probable cost of the Art Competitions and Exhibition. Mr. Saint-Gaudens had for a number of years assembled international exhibitions of paintings at the Carnegie Institute, and was therefore especially competent to make such an estimate. The amount he named was approved by the Organizing Committee and was placed in the hands of the American Federation of Arts, this national organization having consented to assume the responsibility.

GENERAL CHARLES H. SHERRILL
CHAIRMAN OF FINE ARTS COMMITTEE

The work of assembling the American exhibits was assigned to Miss Leila Mechlin, Secretary of the American Federation of Arts, and the organizing of the European exhibits was entrusted to Mr. Guillaume Lerolle, the foreign representative of the Carnegie Institute. The Olympic Committees of the various European nations in every instance assumed the responsibility of assembling their own exhibits, but a certain allowance was made to each for the cost of transportation, insurance, and other expenses, and arrangements for forwarding and returning the exhibits were made by or through Mr. Lerolle.

MISS LEILA MECHLIN, GENERAL DIRECTOR

According to the original agreement, the American Federation of Arts was to be responsible solely for the American Section and for the general supervision of the Exhibit, but owing to the appointment of General Sherrill as Ambassador to Turkey early in 1932, and his immediate departure for his post, the entire management of the Competitions and Exhibition was delegated to Miss Mechlin, representing the American Federation of Arts.

The American Section was assembled chiefly through invitation, although all artists were invited to submit works to juries which met in New York and Los Angeles respectively. The American Fine Arts Committee appointed by General Sherrill, which served as a consulting body, consisted of the following:

- WILLIAM ALANSON BRYAN, Director, Los Angeles Museum
 A. CONGER GOODYEAR, Chairman, Committee of the Museum of Modern Art,
 New York City
 ROBERT B. HARSHE, Director, The Art Institute of Chicago
 FREDERICK P. KEPPEL, President, Carnegie Corporation of New York City
 LEILA MECHLIN, Secretary, American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C.
 EVERETT V. MEEKS, Dean, Yale University School of Fine Arts, New Haven, Connecticut
 C. POWELL MINNIGERODE, Director, Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.

- DUNCAN PHILLIPS, Director, Phillips Memorial Gallery, Washington, D. C.
 PAUL J. SACHS, Assistant Director, Fogg Museum, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts
 HOMER SAINT-GAUDENS, Director, Department of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
 MYRON C. TAYLOR, Trustee, Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City
 FREDERIC ALLEN WHITING, President, American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C.

For the most part the foreign countries forwarded their exhibits by steamship via the Panama Canal direct to Los Angeles. Through special arrangement with the United States Customs Bureau, all exhibits were entered either free of duty or in bond, and unpacked and repacked under customs supervision in the Los Angeles Museum, where the exhibits were shown.

In accordance with a general ruling covering transportation, all exhibits shown in an International Exhibition are sent by prepaid freight and returned by the carriers freight free. The foreign committees insured their respective exhibits in transit, but all exhibits were insured by the American Federation of Arts for the Organizing Committee from the time of arrival in Los Angeles until re-delivery, in the case of foreign exhibits, to the shippers for return, and in the case of the American exhibits, to the artists, owners, or lenders. The total amount of insurance placed was approximately $400,000.00.

The first European exhibits arrived in Los Angeles on May 15, 1932, and the last to be received arrived shortly after July 1. The exhibition opened simultaneously with the Games, on July 30, but continued until the end of August. The last exhibits were returned from Los Angeles October 1.

The Exhibition was held in the Los Angeles Museum of History, Science and Art, which stands in Exposition Park (Olympic Park), opposite and at no great distance from Olympic Stadium. It occupied the foyer of the Museum, the main rotunda and adjacent halls, the small rotunda, and fifteen galleries.

There were in all over 1100 exhibits, by artists of 31 nations. The countries represented were:

Argentine, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Germany, Great Britain, Guatemala, Holland, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Luxembourg, Mexico, Norway, Peru, Poland, Roumania, Salvador, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uruguay, Venezuela, and the United States.

The exhibits, consisting of paintings in oil and in water color, drawings, prints, architectural designs, models, sculpture in the round and in relief, medals, and a few examples of the decorative arts, glass, silver, and textiles, were so far as possible installed according to the nations from which they came. Special galleries were assigned to France, Great Britain, Sweden, Germany, Holland and the United States. Japan and South and Central American countries shared a gallery. Works by representatives of Latvia, Canada, Roumania, Italy, Luxembourg, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Poland, Mexico, Belgium, Austria, Hungary and Switzerland, were grouped in one large well-lighted gallery.

The larger pieces of sculpture were placed in the main rotunda regardless of the nationality of the artists. In the foyer was set forth a comprehensive and retrospective collection of works by Dr. R. Tait McKenzie. The prints, which were segregated, occupied two galleries, the water colors and drawings two galleries, the architectural works one very large gallery one hundred and fifty feet long with double screens running through the center, and the decorative textiles occupied one gallery.

To be entered for honors in the competitions, works were required to be (a) by living artists, (b) produced during the IXth Olympiad, that is, since January 1, 1928, (c) related to Sport, and (d) approved by the National Olympic Committee of the nation under which the artist claimed citizenship. Works not conforming to these conditions were entered hors concours as amplifying exhibits, and were invited by the Chairman of the Fine Arts Committee, General Sherrill, or, under his authorization, by Miss Mechlin, for the American Section, and by Mr. Lerolle for European countries not otherwise represented. A total of 540 contestants represented 24 countries in the competitions.

The International Juries of Award met at the Museum the week before the official opening and their decisions were announced immediately thereafter. These Juries were constituted as follows:

All the awards in the Art Competitions were ceremoniously announced in Olympic Stadium in precisely the same manner as were the winners in the Sports Competitions, and an announcement of the Exhibition was printed on all programmes for the Games.

Two hundred posters, using as an illustration Hunt Diederich's "Polo Player," were issued by the Art Committee and placed in libraries, branch libraries, universities, schools, hotels and other places where people congregated, throughout the city of Los Angeles.

The attendance at the Exhibition was by actual count over 384,000. This attendance would have been greatly augmented had it been possible to keep the Museum open in the afternoons after the conclusion of the Games, and on Sunday mornings.

On the Thursday preceding the official opening of the Games and of the Exhibition, a private view was held for the heads of the National and International Olympic Committees, the Organizing Committee, and the Consuls of the various nations represented.

It should be noted that the Los Angeles Museum of History, Science and Art not only hospitably gave space to the Exhibition but placed members of its staff at the disposal of the General Director, all of whom rendered cheerful and valuable co-operation.

An illustrated catalogue of approximately a hundred pages was printed, in an edition of six thousand, and complimentary copies sent to each exhibitor, to the head of every Olympic Committee, National and International, and to those making loans and to museums, etc. This catalogue was also sold at the Exhibition.

The following was the distribution of awards by Nations in the Art Competitions and Exhibition:

VICTORY CEREMONIES

VICTORY CEREMONIES

AT PREVIOUS celebrations of the Games it had been customary to hold the flag-raising ceremony in the main stadium at the conclusion of each Final event, regardless of where the event might have been contested and without the winning athletes necessarily being present at the ceremony. All prize awards had been postponed until the Closing Ceremony, when they were given to the victors.

This plan had two serious objections. The absence of the winning athlete at the flag ceremony deprived it of color and personality, and by the time of the Closing Ceremony many of the competitors had departed and their medals had to be entrusted to officials of their country for delivery.

It seemed quite clear that it would be advantageous to combine the two ceremonies into one. A plan was therefore worked out, with the approval of the International Olympic Committee, by which the presentation of the medals to the victorious athletes and the flag-raising ceremony were merged in one formal event.

After each event held in Olympic Stadium, the winners of the first three places were brought to a pedestal facing the Official Tribune, the victor in the center on a platform raised slightly higher than the second and third place winners, who occupied positions at his side corresponding exactly to the flag locations above the scoreboard.

All present were requested to rise and face the Victory flags, and as soon as all was quiet the announcement, "Cérémonie Olympique Protocolaire—Olympic Victory Ceremony," was made, and the official results of the event given.

After the announcement the band played the national anthem of the country of the winner, the flags of the countries winning first, second and third places were raised simultaneously, and the results were displayed on the face of the scoreboard. At the close of the national anthem, the President of the International Olympic Committee, accompanied by two others of his own choosing, made the actual presentation of the medals to the victors.

In the case of events held outside Olympic Stadium, the Victory award ceremonies were held in the main Stadium on the day following the completion of the event, the awards taking place just previous to the starting of the afternoon programme. In certain cases, such as Swimming, Rowing, Shooting, and Equestrian Sports, which came late in the second week of the Games, the awards in all events were made during the Closing Ceremony.

This procedure necessitated a rather complicated system of checking results and medals in order that no mistakes should be made. A special form was developed which was printed in triplicate, and when the Medal Department was officially notified of the results of an event, the names of the winners of the first three places were immediately filled in. One copy was attached to a gold, silver, or bronze medal, depending upon the place won, and one copy was retained by the Medal Department for its records. The third copy of the form was used in the case of winners of events outside the Olympic Stadium and was turned over to the manager of the team whose athlete was victorious, through the Sports Technical Department at the Olympic Village. This form notified the athlete to appear at Olympic Stadium the following day at a specified hour, to participate in the Victory Ceremony and receive his medal. In any case where the victorious athlete was not present at the Stadium for the Victory Ceremony, his medal was given to the manager of his team, and a notation was entered on the form retained by the Sports Technical Department telling of the disposition made of the medal.

The plan followed was immensely popular with athletes, officials, and public, and proved to be one of the most interesting features of each day's programme. By means of this system of awards, more than ninety per cent of the winners were actually present to receive their awards in Olympic Stadium and the Ceremony impressed itself on both athletes and audience.

THE LAST MARCH OF THE FLAGS

THE CLOSING CEREMONY

AN UNPRECEDENTED audience numbering nearly a hundred thousand persons swarmed into Olympic Stadium on the afternoon of Sunday, August 14, drawn by the irresistible attraction of the equestrian "Prix des Nations" Jumping event, the completion of awards of Victory medals, and, last but not least, the Closing Ceremony of the Games.

Spellbound, they witnessed the superb, rhythmic grace of horse and rider in the exhibition of Dressage; breathlessly, they leaned forward in their seats as the world's finest military horsemen guided their spirited mounts over the sportiest course of jumps Olympic horses had ever faced. The tension over, the multitude voiced approval as bespangled horsemen, tanned sailors, stalwart oarsmen, Herculean boxers, graceful fencers, muscular swimmers and divers—the last of the Olympic champions of 1932—received their medals in the colorful Victory Ceremonies.

It was a long, eventful afternoon. The sun, whose benign smile had not been dimmed by passing clouds during the entire sixteen days of the Games, was sinking slowly behind the hills of the Olympic Village in which the athletes had spent so many busy days and restful nights.

The last competition was over . . . the last record broken . . . the last triumphant victor rewarded . . . the last Nation honored by the raising of its flag to the Victory mast and by the respectful homage of the vast audience as its anthem filled the air. All good things must end and the Games of the Xth Olympiad were swiftly drawing to a close.

No one rose to go. The audience silently awaited the ceremony which would bring to an end this glorious experience.

Music broke the silence. The Olympic Band was playing. It was a stirring march reminiscent of the Parade of Nations on the Opening Day. Automatically all eyes turned again to the huge tunnel from which, two short weeks previously, had emerged the flower of the youth of forty nations come to celebrate the Games of the Xth Olympiad on the shores of the Pacific.

And, as the first martial notes sounded on the late afternoon air, there marched from the tunnel the same white-clad figure that had appeared on the Opening Day, proudly bearing the banner of Greece, Mother of the Olympic Games. Then, in order, came the flags and banners of the participating nations exactly as on the Opening Day.

But no. There is a difference. The Stadium, the music, the flags, the banners, all were there — the Nations on parade — but the pulsating life-blood of the Games, the athletes, was gone.

THE MARCH-OUT OF THE FLAGS

Gone were the ruddy checked, long-striding, colorfully garbed youths who had marched so hopefully down the sun-swept straightaway two weeks before. And gone the roaring cheers that greeted them.

Who knows what ghostly figures of past Olympic greatness may have swung unseen in shadowy files behind the lonely flag of Greece? Corœbus, the first Olympic victor, Alcibiades, the patriot, Diagoras and his three sons, all victors in the Games, Cimon the unbeaten charioteer with his great team which was buried with him, Milo of Croton, greatest of wrestlers, Pheidippides, who gasped the story of Grecian triumph on the Plains of Marathon with his dying breath, or Spiridion Loues, victor of the first Marathon of modern times. Who knows?

The ghostly procession swung silently, relentlessly, around the vast oval, treading the very footprints of the Opening Day . . . a pageant of purposeful Olympic participation. Athletes may come and athletes may go—but the Games go on forever.

A thousand memories flash by as the lonely flag bearers swing into position facing the Tribune of Honor. The long shadow that covers the field is climbing slowly up the face of the Peristyle. Down in the shadow the President of the International Olympic Committee, Count de Baillet-Latour, is calling upon the Youth of every country to assemble in four years at Berlin, there to celebrate the Games of the XIth Olympiad.

As his words, in sonorous French, are carried to the silent assemblage, the great five-ringed Olympic flag flutters slowly down the pole to be tenderly taken in hand by white-clad guards. High up on the scoreboard, the dying rays of the sun glistening in the brazen throats of their trumpets, a group of musicians sound a fanfare. A distant cannon roars a farewell salute.

Down on the field, shadowy figures in the dusk, two others have joined the President of the International Olympic Committee on the rostrum. The Secretary of the Dutch Olympic Committee, Major G. van Rossem, is presenting the Olympic flag that was entrusted to the City of Amsterdam at the Games of the IXth Olympiad in 1928.

Count de Baillet-Latour thanks him on behalf of the Committee and in turn places it in the care of the Honorable John C. Porter, Mayor of the city of Los Angeles, to be kept until the Games of Berlin, four years hence.

The trumpets high up on the Peristyle are sounding again. The plaintive strains of "Aloha," the sad farewell of the western seas, are tugging at the heart-strings of the assemblage. The flag-bearers on the field move slowly toward the tunnel. The banners, once proudly erect, droop dejectedly.

The great Chorus has taken up the plaintive melody of the Islands—
 "Aloha — Farewell to thee," —

The audience, deeply touched, seeks emotional relief by joining in—
 "Farewell to thee."

Standards and standard bearers, flags and flag bearers, are wending their mournful way from the fast-gathering dusk into the darkness of the tunnel, the great five-ringed Olympic flag bringing up the rear of the procession.

"One fond embrace before we now do part — until we meet again" — the song dies away with a quavering note.

High up on the Peristyle the trumpets are sobbing the poignant melody of "Taps." Damp eyes swing to the East. On the scoreboard, —

"I Olympiad, Athens, 1896 — X Olympiad, Los Angeles, 1932 — XI Olympiad, Berlin, 1936" —

with the flags of Greece, the United States, and Germany on the Victory poles, Olympic History and Olympic Prophecy!

As the last plaintive notes of "Taps" fade away in a long-drawn-out sigh, the flame of the Torch dies slowly away into the great bronze bowl.

"May the Olympic Torch Pursue Its Way Through the Ages" — an unseen hand is slowly writing on the scoreboard. The Ghost Parade is gone. The music has ceased. The Olympic Torch is out. Darkness settles over the great structure. Zeus in his Golden chariot, the sun, has disappeared beyond the hills — returned to Mount Olympus. The multitude of saddened spectators sit in silence, gazing with misty eyes at the great bronze bowl whose flame is now a memory.

They tip-toe to the tunnels.

The Games of the Xth Olympiad have passed into history.

FINANCE

THE sources of income for financing the Games of the Xth Olympiad were the State Olympiad Bond issue receipts, income from the sale of tickets of admission, receipts from limited concession privileges, Olympic Village income, bank interest, and the receipts from salvage and sales of equipment following the Games.

Two days after the close of the Games, the Organizing Committee was happy to be able to announce publicly that the funds of the Committee would permit of the retirement of the Olympiad Bonds. This announcement was given wide publicity, and as a consequence the erroneous thought developed in some quarters that there had been a financial profit from the Games.

It must be remembered that the total income from the Games does not have charged against it the cost of any stadium or other facilities used in the Games which existed prior to the organization of the Games and for the cost of which the Games did not have to pay. In the organic provisions for the Olympic Games, it is not possible that they shall ever be a business proposition where the word profit could properly be applied.

If the Games were awarded to a city possessing no facilities whatsoever, and which, consequently, was compelled to provide all of these facilities initially for the Games, it would be impossible, as a practical proposition, to receive an income sufficient to offset the cost even if all of the events of the Games were patronized to the capacity of the facilities. It has always been recognized, therefore, that a city does not accept the award of the Games as a business proposition.

It is recognized, of course, that successful Games bring many benefits to a community, but only of the same general nature and in the same proportion as the world is benefited by a movement such as modern Olympism.

In a practical sense the Olympic city, while there may be a difference between cost and income, finds this difference reconciled in the form of stadiums and other facilities that will continue to serve the community after the Games are over.

Taking full account of the above, it can properly be said that the Games of the Xth Olympiad were a success from a financial standpoint, as well as in all other respects.

From the very beginning all books and records of accounts, receipts, and disbursements, were kept and audited by Price, Waterhouse & Co.

Monthly reports of receipts, and of each and every disbursement, were rendered in detail to the Organizing Committee and to the California Olympiad Commission up to the time of the Games. A complete financial report, embodying copies of the monthly reports, has been filed annually with the Controller of the State of California and made of public record.

Following the Games, the final and all-inclusive audit report was started, and at the time of the preparation of this chronicle the report is complete except for a few accounts still open. When the accounts are finally closed this audit report will be filed with the Organizing Committee and with the California Olympiad Commission, and will be made of public record in the office of the Controller of the State of California.

SALVAGE

In some instances the arrangement for the use of facilities provided for leaving all or part of the installations in place after the Games. In other cases, the privilege of removal of installations was reserved for the Management of the Games.

Immediately following the Games, the Engineering and Construction departments systematically salvaged to the highest bidders such materials as were removable under the arrangements that had been made.

In the case of the Olympic Village, obviously the biggest part of the salvaging task, greater time was consumed in order to effect a methodical and constructive disposition of all equipment and materials.

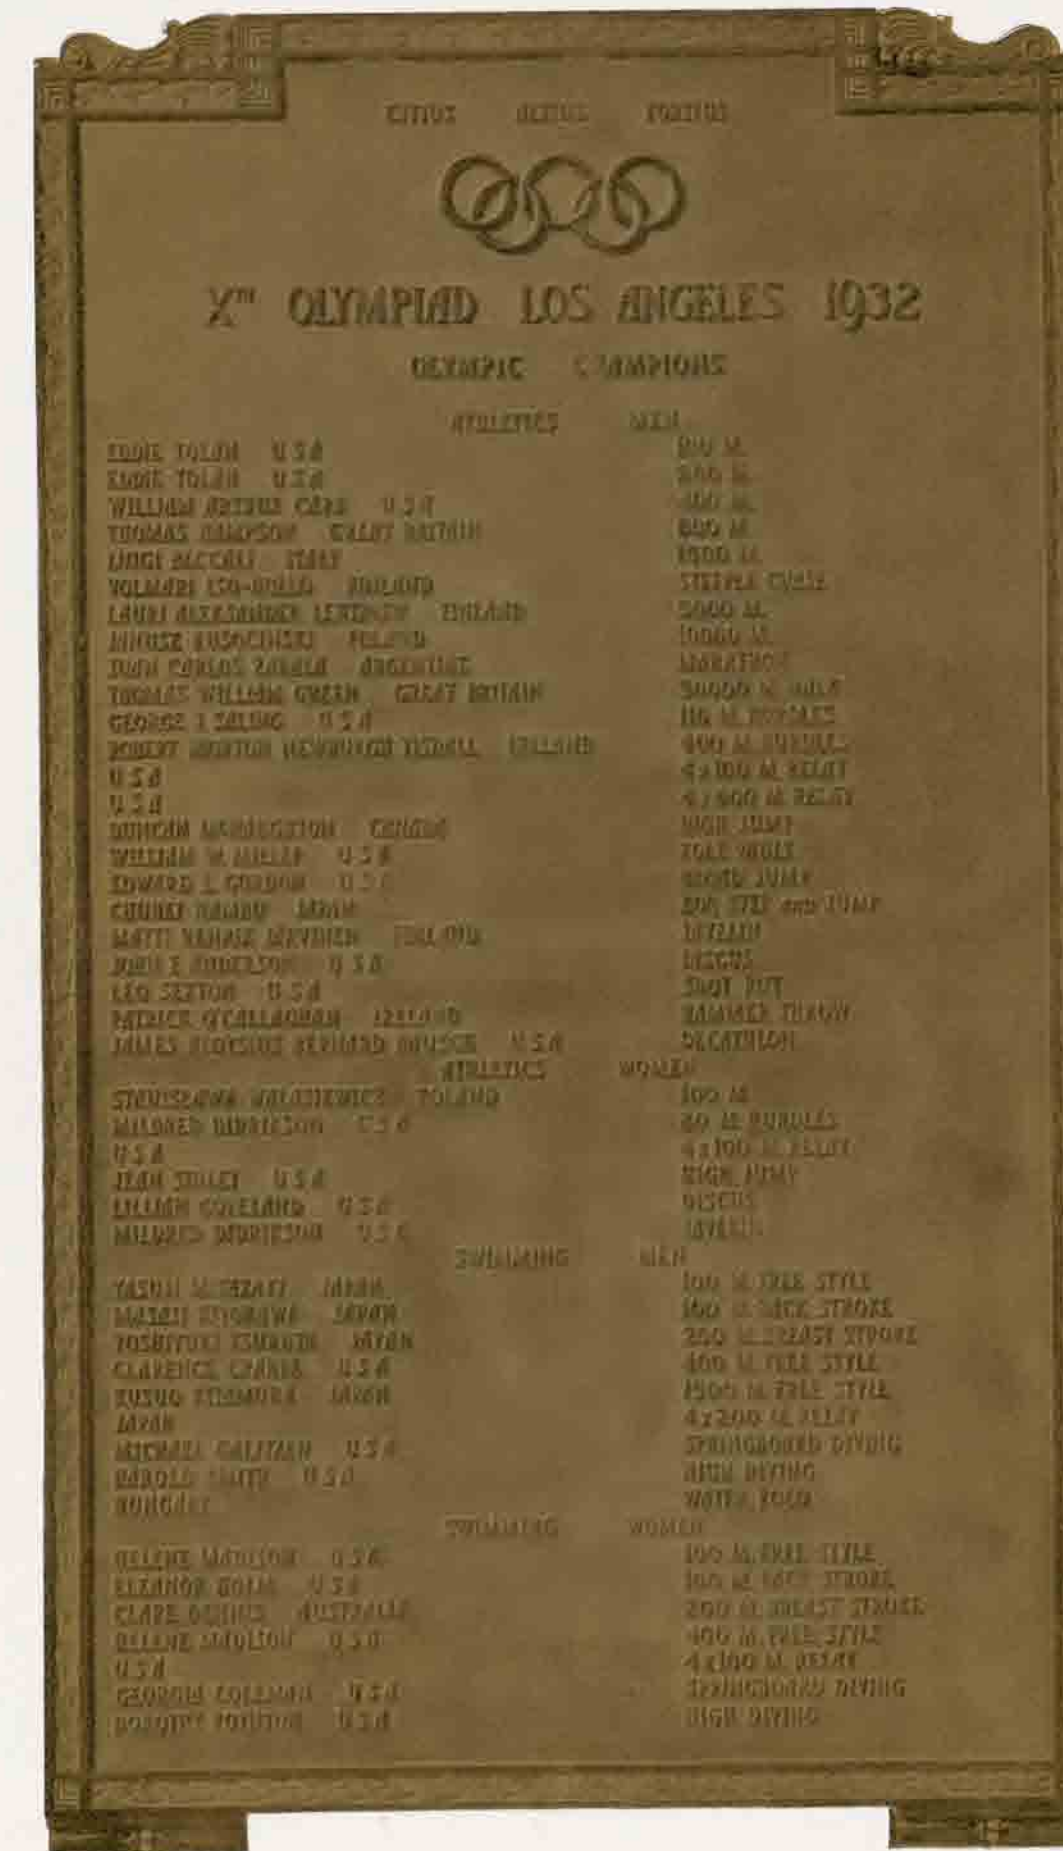

Because of the careful, precise, and economical formulas established in the design, construction, and equipment of the Village, the record of salvage recovery surpassed reasonable expectations. All salvaging operations and sales of equipment were completed prior to January 1, 1933.

CONCLUSION OF BUSINESS

In the post-Games period, conjointly with salvaging, final audit reports, and the consummation as quickly as possible of all phases of the business operations of the Committee, careful effort was made to preserve suitable exhibits for the Museum of the International Olympic Committee at Lausanne and the Museum in Los Angeles.

Provisions have been made for the preservation of the complete office records of the Organizing Committee for a fixed period of years.

When the work was first started some years ago it became the policy of all Departments to standardize operations wherever possible and to keep a record of same available in the furtherance of the Olympic movement.

Note—IN THE preparation of this book it has been the intent to tell the story of the Games of the Xth Olympiad in pictures as well as in type. The photographic story of the Games is as complete as it has been possible to make it. Opposite pages 233, 255, 335, appear unretouched four-color reproductions of natural-color photographs. The frontispiece, and the color plate opposite page 113, are, respectively, four-color and six-color process reproductions.

At page 778 is a series of four reproductions of tablets in bronze. Lists of personnel of Olympic Committees and other official groups, and of individuals, appearing in this book, are prepared as of the period of the Games of the Xth Olympiad and purposely do not include subsequent changes. All names and information pertaining to these are presented in conformity with material furnished the Organizing Committee.
