AND PUTNAM

MG George Putnam installed as AAAA's 16th President

INSTALLED at a National Executive Board meeting held at the conclusion of the 27th AAAA National Convention in St. Louis, Mo., newly-elected President Major General George W. Putnam, Jr., Ret., anticipates a sizable turnout at his initial Board meeting to be held this June 29 in Washington, D.C.

As a senior Army Aviation planner, manager, and commander with a long, distinguished military career, and a current member of Army Aviation's Hall of Fame, Putnam heads a 58-member National Board slate. The Falls Church, Va. resident is joined on the Board by Maj. Gen. Story C. Stevens (Senior Vice President) of Hilton Head Island, S.C. and Paul L. Hendrickson (Secretary-Treasurer) of Ferguson, Mo.

The Association's seven National Vice Presidents who serve in elective three-year terms of office include Maj. Gen. Richard D. Kenyon, Springfield, Va.; Brig. Gen. James M. Hesson, Reston, Va.; John J. Stanko, Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.; CW4 David E. Helton, Joseph P. Cribbins, and A.W. "Bill" Pollard, all of Alexandria, Va.; and

Completing the full Board are Arthur H. Kesten, (Executive VP), Westport, Conn., an appointee, and Past Presidents GEN Hamilton H. Howze, Ft. Worth, Tex.; Lt. Generals Harry W.O. Kinnard, Arlington, Va., Robert R. Williams, Ft. Worth, Tex.; and John M. Wright, Jr., Irving, Tex.; Maj. Generals Delk M. Oden, Alexandria, Va., George S. Beatty, Jr., Savannah, Ga., and James C. Smith, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Also serving on the Board in perpetuity as Past Presidents are Colonels Richard L. Long, Williamsburg, Va, Edward L. Nielsen, N. Palm Beach, Fla., and John W. Marr, Arlington, Va.; Bryce Wilson, Genoa, Nev.; and Darwin P. Gerard, Alexandria, Va.

An elected USAREUR Region President, COL Marvin E. Mitchiner, Jr.; 12 Nat'l Members-at-Large to be appointed by the President prior to the June Executive Board meeting; and some 23 elected Chapter Presidents representing Chapters with 150 or more members round out the large but representative 1985-1986 Executive Board.

Apache

Self-deployable...and ready to fight when it gets there!

Ready for battle, the U.S. Army's AH-64A Apache can fly for 1,000 nautical miles into a 10-knot headwind with a 20-minute fuel reserve.

The AH-64 can self-deploy to support armed forces almost anywhere in the free world. Its extended-range fuel tanks can be replaced by weapons in just minutes for a quick turnaround. Apache is ready for battle almost as soon as it touches down.

Capable of rapid strategic deployment worldwide, Apache is air-transportable in C-130, C-141, C-5A and C-17 aircraft.

General Motors supports

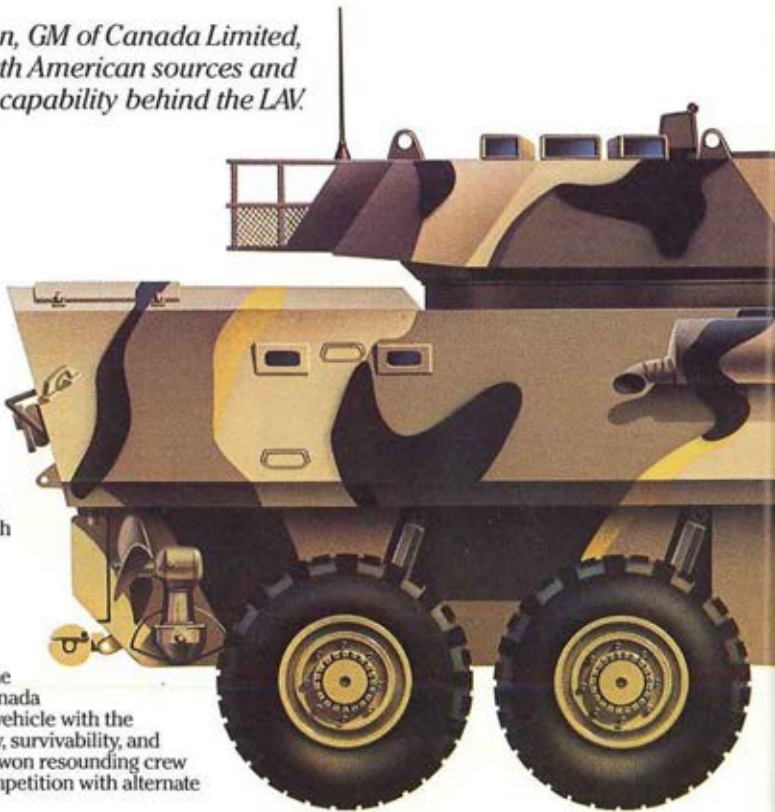

Diesel Division, GM of Canada Limited, marshals North American sources and international capability behind the LAV.

The vehicle begins as sheets of ballistic steel. Precision cut by arcs of high-energy plasma. Robotically welded to NATO military specifications. Invested with the power of a turbocharged General Motors diesel. Outfitted. Tested. Inspected.

By the time an LAV-25 rolls out the plant door, GM Canada has endowed the vehicle with the firepower, mobility, survivability, and performance that won resounding crew acceptance in competition with alternate designs.

We have full R&D capability. In the case of the LAV, GM Canada took a proven vehicle design, enhanced it, and developed North American sources for its components. But General Motors is capable of undertaking clean-paper development of any armored vehicle, from design, through manufacture, to field support.

The two-man turret on the LAV-25 incorporates two-axis electro-hydraulic stabilization from GM's Delco Systems Operations. GM Canada is capable of integrating this reliable, accurate system into additional vehicle designs.

GM's commitment reaches beyond the factory and into the field. The extent of this commitment is a measure of the corporation's ability to support its products.

GM Canada's Integrated Logistics Support (ILS) program complements every stage from design to delivery, and beyond—for the lifetime of the vehicle. We provide training for operators, for maintenance, for trainers. We support you with standards, software, data, provisioning, HFE, RAM-D, safety analysis, U.S. MIL-SPEC packaging, and field service capabilities.

GM Canada is as well equipped to manage systems-level requirements as to manage hardware. Life-cycle cost management enables us to make decisions on the whole of any program, to see to it that no single element takes a project out of specification or increases its life-cycle cost without a resultant improvement in performance.

Diesel Division, GM of Canada, is just one part of the new group at GM committed to providing the latest in tactical and strategic technology—on time and on cost. The General Motors Defense Group. Staying Power Promise of reliability and increased pilot efficiency helped get Canadian Marconi on the Black Hawk helicopter back in 1973. Living up to expectations and pilot enthusiasm for the easy to read color scales put them on the Seahawk, Nighthawk, Apache and AHIP.

After the first 150,000 flight hours, the Black Hawk instruments MTBF was well in excess of 2,000 hours, and that for a system comprising 22 vertical scales, 9 numeric readouts and 5 LRU's.

If you're looking for reliability, check with CMC. We know what staying power is all about.

By
Maj. Gen. Ellis D. Parker,
Commanding General,
USA Aviation Center and
Fort Rucker, Alabama

CONGRATULATIONS to the many individuals and organizations whose contributions and effort served to make the 1985 AAAA National Convention a splendid success. The well-planned variety of presentations and displays provided an excellent forum for professional discourse among members of our dynamic Aviation Branch.

I was especially heartened by the enthusiastic and positive atmosphere that permeated the entire convention. For it is through that spirit of teamwork, so obvious in St. Louis, that our branch will continue to solidify and progress toward the realization of our vast potential.

One aspect of the Convention that I thought particularly noteworthy was the inclusion of the non-commissioned officer programs. Briefings by aviation NCO's were given on subjects ranging from the enlisted personnel management system to aviation safety. These were some of the most professional, informative, and best organized briefings which I attended at the convention.

Our non-commissioned officers provided an excellent example of two-way information flow. It was unfortunate that the audiences were composed primarily of non-commissioned officers. I would encourage the general membership to attend these informative presentations next year in Atlanta.

While I was in attendance at the National Convention, BG "Rudy" Ostovich was in Garmisch attending the AAAA USAREUR Convention. His observations indicated an equally well-planned and attended convention for our European-based aviation community.

As a departure from our conventions, let me update you on several matters of significance within our branch.

World Helicopter Championships

On a more disheartening note, I regret to inform you of the cancellation of our World Helicopter Championship competition. In mid-February of this year, I charged LTC Robert E. Harry with the responsibility to select, train, and take into the Fifth World Helicopter Competition a United States Precision Helicopter Team. Our objective was to win the World Helicopter Championship for the second consecutive time.

On 11 March 1985, the United States Precision Helicopter Team (USPHT) support organization was formed. The goal was to organize a first-class competition for the United States Team Trials to be conducted 29 April—3 May 1985 at Fort Rucker, AL. The dedication and hard work of this small group of professionals achieved their goal.

Unfortunately, the USSR withdrew from the competition. Only four countries remained in the competition (USA, France, The Federal Republic of Germany and The United Kingdom). In accordance with international rules, there must be five participating countries to hold a World Helicopter Championship. As a result, the World Helicopter Championship will be deferred until June 1986.

TWOS

The Total Warrant Officer Study (TWOS) is an on-going study to scrutinize all aspects of the warrant officer corps to determine the best methodology for recruiting, training, utilizing, and retaining warrant officers in the future. Because our aviation warrant officers comprise almost 45% of the total warrant officer population, we at the USAAVNC are following the progress of this study very closely. The TWOS Proponent Workshop II is scheduled for 7-9 May 1985.

Aviation Division Reorganization

An Aviation Division was established within the DA ODCSOPS on the first of March, 1985. The new Division Chief is LTC Matthew M. McGuire.

This is another major step in the solidification of the Aviation Branch into full partnership within the combined arms team.

As MAJ "Chuck" Nowlin discusses in a follow-on article in this issue, changes in force structure, new systems and equipment, as well as Aviation Branch status, will require more intensive management of aviation assets on the battlefield of the future. The Aviation Division will play an important role in insuring that we maximize the potential of Army Aviation on that battlefield.

Changes at Fort Rucker

On April 26, the USSAVNC honored the retirement of COL James K. Kitterman. The ceremony marked the end of 34 years of sterling service to his country. His most recent assignment has been as the USAAVNC Chief of Staff during the first crucial, formative years of the Aviation Branch. His contributions to aviation were inestimable. We wish COL Kitterman and his family Godspeed in a well-deserved retirement.

$1.17 billion multi-year contract received by Boeing Vertol

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — Boeing Vertol Company was awarded a $1,170,672,076 multi-year procurement (MYP) contract by the USA Aviation Systems Command (AVSCOM), to remanufacture 240 early model CHINOOK (A, B and C) helicopters to the advanced CH-47D standard.

The award is part of the Army's plan to modernize 436 CH-47's through the early 1990's. Sixty-one CH-47D's were delivered to Army units through the end of March with production reaching four aircraft per month in April.

This MYP contract will save taxpayers $123.1 million during FY 1985 through 1989, or a 12 percent reduction compared to the estimated cost of five single year contract awards.

"The receipt of this five year contract reflects the hard work and diligence of all the people who have kept the CH-47 Modernization Program on-schedule and within cost since its inception over eight years ago — US Army Aviation personnel, and the employees of Boeing Vertol and our suppliers," said Joseph Mallen, president of Boeing Vertol Company.

"This multi-year contract stabilizes the Chinook Fleet Improvement Plan," said Colonel Norbert Patla, the US Army's CH-47 Modernization Program Project Manager. "In addition to saving taxpayers' dollars, our multi-year contracting provides a pool of critical components to support any contingency operations spare parts demands," Colonel Patla added. ■■■■

KING RADIO'S AN/ARC-199 THE LATEST WORD IN TACTICAL HF

The latest word in tactical HF is now in production and will be available to the U.S. Army later this year.

King Radio's AN/ARC-199 will provide Army helicopters (including the UH-60 Black Hawk, OH-58 Kiowa, the CH-47D Chinook, the new AHIP and the UH-1 Huey) with advanced radios for the demanding nap of the earth (NOE) mission.

What does the U.S. Army find so appealing about King HF? Several features make the AN/ARC-199 stand out. One is the MIL-STD 1553B data bus interface which provides compatibility with the new avionics systems architecture. Other points in King's favor include the small size and light weight of the AN/ARC-199 (approximately 30 pounds including the CDU) and the reliability associated with King equipment. These weight and space savings allow for the addition of other mission payloads.

Using four microprocessor chips, the AN/ARC-199 is able to automatically scan up to 20 preset channels and will then break squelch only when it receives a transmission containing its unique address. Add to this feature BITTE, selectable power output, secure voice and data compatibility plus the growth potential for frequency agility, frequency link analysis, anti-jam circuits, automated communications and electronic operating instructions—and you have the capability for a truly ADAPTIVE HF SYSTEM.

King Radio is also producing the companion radio to the AN/ARC-199—the AN/VRC-86. This radio, which is functionally identical to the AN/ARC-199, will be installed at fixed sites or in Army vehicles. Both radios work with telephone-like simplicity, allowing helicopter pilots to keep in touch with ground forces during tactical operations.

Since winning the initial Army contract, King Radio's successes in tactical HF haven't gone unnoticed. Another HF contract has come our way—this time to build an advanced HF for use in the rugged operational environment of tactical fighter aircraft. King is now producing this radio, the AN/ARC-200 (a derivative of the AN/ARC-199), which will be used in an RAAF version of the F/A-18 strike fighter aircraft.

If King's tactical HF story interests you either from the standpoint of off-the-shelf products or adaptations of the systems we are building, contact: Director, Special Programs Department, King Radio Corporation, 400 North Rogers Road, Olathe, Kansas 66062, (800) 255-8243. New Aviation Division created in DA

A RMY Aviation quietly came of age in the halls of the Pentagon on 1 March 1985. With the various new aircraft, missions, force integration issues, and future aviation systems, it became evident to the Department of the Army it has to intensely manage this its newest, most lethal and mobile combat arm in the history of land warfare.

Major General Jack Woodmansee, the Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Plans, made the decision to form the new Headquarters, Department of the Army Division within ODCSOPS and staffed it with action officers familiar with HQDA policies. The new office is a spin-off of the Combat Maneuver Division and will be called Army Aviation Division (DAMO-FDV).

AAAA Overview

MAJOR AWARDS BANQUET CHANGES

At its March 28 business meeting, AAAA's National Board approved a proposal to present the Association's three unit awards at the Saturday night Convention Banquet, the presentations to be followed by a major 20-minute address by a senior U.S. Army guest speaker. In the same action, the Board indicated a separate National Awards Luncheon would be conducted on the Convention Friday at which the Assn's four individual awards would be presented by very senior Army dignitaries. The individual awardees (Aviator, Soldier, and DAC of the Year, and the McClellan Safety Award Winner) would be seated at the Saturday night Awards Banquet and would be introduced as honored head table guests.

HALL OF FAME SELECTION PROCEDURES

Under newly-approved National Board selection procedures, AAAA members with seven or more years of current, continuous membership shall elect a specific number of candidates for 1986 induction to the Hall of Fame from those appearing on a ballot. The Hall of Fame Board of Trustees are to nominate a specific number of eligible, highly qualified candidates for placement on the ballot. Additionally, a worldwide candidate solicitation process shall precede the balloting. Active Army nominees shall continue to be ineligible for consideration until retirement.

YOU WIN SOME — YOU LOSE SOME!

AAAA members in the Greater Indianapolis Area have scheduled a Chapter Activation Meeting on July 19 — dwindling Chapter membership and interest have brought a standstill to Air Cav Chapter operations and the activity has petitioned for deactivation.

THIRD ASE SYMPOSIUM

Plans have been completed for the conduct of the Third Aircraft Survivability Equipment Symposium co-sponsored by AAAA and the ASE PMO, St. Louis, Mo. The two-day classified gathering will be held during November 12-14 at the Sanders Associates' plant in Nashua, N.H. The previous symposia were conducted at Loral Electronics' facility in Yonkers, N.Y., in 1983 and at the E-Systems plant in Garland, Tex., in 1984.

ONE LHX ENGINE GOES ABOVE AND BEYOND ARMY REQUIREMENTS.

On March 7, 1985, our ATE109 Turboshaft powered its Huey test bed aloft. For the first time an LHX engine candidate flew. Above and beyond the Army's requirements.

Earlier, another first. On February 11, a Bell 206 fitted with an ATE109 adaptive fuel control actually anticipated the commands of its veteran test pilot. Unprecedented response in a rotary wing craft. Again exceeding U.S. Army requirements.

A vastly superior LHX engine has emerged. Designed by Garrett and Allison. A joint venture that's no paper tiger. For production competition that's on time and on budget.

Based on Garrett's F109 Trainer Engine and Allison's Advanced Technology Demonstrator Engine (ATDE), our ATE109 blends the technology of both.

The results have been rewarding.

The ATE109 has already exceeded the Army's 1200 shp requirement, while meeting tough SFC goals.

Modular components, mounted for battle survivability, will modernize on-condition maintenance concepts. Projected operating costs fall far below current inventory engines.

The Allison/Garrett team.

We have consistently taken our LHX engine a bit further than the rest. To the development and refinement of the first airworthy LHX engine prototype.

Allison and Garrett. America's LHX propulsion team.

Because we're always planning for the future, the Bell OH-58D takes aim with advanced technology.

The OH-58D — it's a fully integrated aerial scout. For target acquisition. Target designation. And target handoff. In adverse weather. Day or night.

Its mission: accurate control of all forms of firepower — with advanced systems that help the commander "see" the battlefield and synchronize the combined arms effort.

Atop the new all-composite rotor, a mast-mounted sight (TV, laser range finder designator, thermal imaging) enhances mission versatility in a number of ways.

It can operate with AH-1S and AH-64 attack helicopters, acquiring targets at extended range from a masked position so they can employ their weapons at maximum standoff distance.

For field artillery, the OH-58D can designate targets for laser-seeking Copperhead rounds, as well as direct conventional artillery firing for effect six times faster than standard means.

Additionally, the OH-58D can integrate Air Force fire support by designating targets for smart bombs.

Post-Convention Report

27th National Convention
Mar. 28-Mar. 31, 1985
St. Louis, Missouri

U.S. REPRESENTATIVE TO THE NATO MILITARY COMMITTEE
APO NEW YORK 09667

... I would like to pass on some observations that are related to Army Aviation. Last week, I spent two days at the Army's National Training Center at Ft. Irwin, California. Army Aviation was a "late player" in the development of the Training Center, but it is beginning to catch up.

The units training there have usually been supported by their Divisional Air Cavalry Troop or their Attack Helicopter Company. The air "package" which deploys is usually about five scouts and seven gunships. Their assigned roles, missions, and training objectives have been in accordance with standard doctrine. The attack platoons have been particularly effective in attacking the second echelon forces.

I should point out that the increasingly effective use of the National Training Center has depended on good teamwork between the air and ground units and also between developers, industry, and the users in developing the MILES Aegis System. Most of you, I'm sure, are familiar with the Multiple Integrated Laser System or MILES, which is used at the Training Center.

Until about a year ago, there was no MILES equipment for the helicopters so their realistic integration into the training was hampered. Close teamwork resulted in the rapid development of the system which is now in use. The helicopters are now scoring laser "kills" with their TOW's, cannon, and rockets. There are still some bugs in the systems, but MILES has greatly increased the training value at the Training Center for ground and Army Aviation units.

During the last rotation, a battalion of the 101st Air Assault Division participated in the training and the personnel at the NTC were very impressed with their performance, especially with the ability of the organic aviation in both day and night operations and the great teamwork between ground and aviation units. I'm sure that other speakers here will elaborate further on some of those developments. Thank you again for the invitation to deliver the Keynote Address. I wish you the very best for a highly successful convention.

AAAA's 27th National Convention in St. Louis establishes new attendance, exhibit marks

WITH more than 3,100 badged participants at its various programs and functions, the AAAA's 27th Nat'l Convention established new attendance records during its four-day program in St. Louis, March 28-31.

Over 1,300 members, spouses, and guests attended the '85 Nat'l Awards Banquet, a "black tie" event marked by rain for the second year in a row. Generals Richard D. Thompson, Charles W. Bagnal, Joseph T. Palastra, Jr., Orlando E. Gonzales, and Ellis D. Parker, and the Hon. Howard E. Haugerud assisted in presenting the CY 1984 AAAA National Awards.

On the previous day some 909 attendees cited 'AAAA's Best' at its informal Membership Luncheon. Campbell's Air Assault Chapter was named 'Top Chapter—CY84' while the Taunus Chapter was acclaimed "USAREUR's Best".

Membership Enrollment Prizes were won by the Aviation Center ($1,000), Delaware Valley ($500), and Citadel ($250) Chapters in the "Largest Membership" category, and the Corpus Christi ($700), Fulda ($350), and Citadel Chapters ($175) in the "Largest Percentage" category.

Twenty-four speakers took part in the three-day, five panel professional program chaired by Brig. Gen. Ronald K. Anderson, President of the Lindbergh Chapter and Project Manager—

LHX. Sponsored by USAAVNC and chaired by CSM Roger W. Putnam, the initial "Aviation NCO Conference" reflected the growing importance of the NCO's in the Association.

On the social side, the three-reception convention was highlighted by the traditional President's Reception where 1,175 members and guests mixed and mingled - the function's 63% attendance gain topped a list of five other functions that posted more than 40% increases.

There were 17 separate Chapter Hospitality Suites in operation on the AAAA's "Enjoy Yourself!" mezzanine at the Sheraton-St. Louis. Almost all had great music and exceptional food; all experienced SRO attendance at frequent times during their one-night stands.

Many conventioners spent over 10 hours in the Exhibit Hall at an Exhibitors' Reception, four one-hour refreshment breaks, and a Saturday afternoon "box luncheon and social". During this time they viewed the exhibits of some 95 firms and agencies covering more than 32,500 sq. ft. in the spacious Cervantes Center.

National Awards, pertinent professional programming, outstanding exhibits, and a fine, informal social program to augment each day's activities are the ingredients of a well-attended, successful convention. All were on hand this year in St. Louis!

CY 1984 National Awardees Garrett, Ghormley, Stewart, Selling, Duck, Tolbert, Osorio, Robbins, Koehler, (Pres. Smith), and Henry pose for a group photograph prior to the Saturday, Mar. 30 AAAA National Awards Banquet in St. Louis, Mo.

IT'S a great pleasure and a personal honor to participate in this year's Awards Banquet, and to recognize the outstanding soldiers and civilians who have made such noteworthy contributions to their organizations, to Army Aviation, and to the United States Army.

It gives me the opportunity to pay tribute to the professionalism, spirit, and motivation which we find among Army Aviators. It is a particularly warm feeling for me, although I guess it's a little bit embarrassing. You've heard about the "Army Aviation Soldier of the Year". One of my great failures of life is that I didn't make E-7 when I was a sergeant. I'm sure you're going to do much better than that. Then we meet the "Army Aviator of the Year", and they wouldn't even let me be one.

Before I get chastised for talking longer than I should have, I would like to make sure everyone understands that I was asked to do two things tonight. First of all, I'm supposed to talk a little bit about where Army Aviation has been in the last year, and they said I could have seven minutes to do that, and then I'm supposed to present the "Aviation Unit of the Year Award", and I was told I could get five minutes to do that. So I'm going to stay well within my 12 minutes. Actually, it will probably take nine. But bear with me, because it's been a great year, and I think the future of Army Aviation is just filled with some very, very exciting things.

Let me just say a few things about what's happened since last year's AAAA Convention. First of all, I think the Aviation Branch has been solidified. It's been recognized and accepted, and it's a part of our structure. AVSCOM, I'm happy to say, has continued its advancement as a systems command within the Army Materiel Command. AVSCOM's laboratories continue to yield technology and products that I think will do much to shape the future of Army Aviation.

The APACHE, at long last, entered full scale production. AHIP is going through and meeting its operational testing. BLACK HAWK and the CH-47D, under multi-year contracts, have been accepted as such. The LHX program is in high gear and I am going to talk a little more about that.

"LHX is expected . . . to enter pilot production in just 3½ years following concept exploration."

I think these are exciting times and that aviation's future will become even brighter provided we do one thing. We've got to provide to Congress, and the American taxpayer, proof positive that we can be innovative and productive and, above all, that we can exercise good stewardship over the resources that have been entrusted to our care.

These are exciting times!

Comments of General Richard H. Thompson, Commanding General, USA Materiel Command, at the 1985 AAAA National Awards Banquet in St. Louis, Missouri

Now, many people in this audience know that I am personally committed to doing exactly that. To assist in this endeavor, I have initiated several actions to streamline the materiel acquisition process. Most notable of these actions was establishment of a four year development goal for all system new starts, i.e., four years after a concept exploration go-ahead decision, with funds in place, until the first production contract award. LHX is expected to better that goal by entering pilot production in just 3½ years following concept exploration.

Now, too often in the past, we failed to recognize the importance of long range planning in initial life-cycle stages of development. For example, insufficient emphasis is placed on concept exploration despite the fact that decisions made prior to Milestone One will shape about 70% of a total program's outcome.

The proper emphasis

AMC and TRADOC are changing this, and Army Aviation is leading the way with its Aviation Modernization Plan and the LHX. With LHX, we place the proper emphasis on concept exploration, not only to shorten the development process, but also to reduce program risk up front. Quality and risk reduction simply cannot be tested into a system during full-scale development. It must be addressed in the very beginning.

LHX is the Army's only major aviation new start in the President's budget. Approximately 3,000 scout-attack and 2,000 utility versions are planned, making it the largest helicopter program in our Army's history. The LHX will replace our more than 7,000 tactically and logistically obsolete AH-1, UH-1, OH-58, and OH-6 helicopters in the light fleet.

The importance of this program to the Army, to the national defense, and to our industry, is self evident. However, a high tech piece of equipment like LHX is only as good as those who operate and who maintain it.

But we are doing something about that. Our new manpower and personnel integration initiative, termed MANPRINT, is an all out effort to emphasize human factors — manpower, personnel, and training considerations — throughout the acquisition process. Most especially, we want to do this up front during concept exploration. MANPRINT means superior equipment matched to the capabilities of the individual who operates the equipment. Accordingly, this will be a foremost consideration for LHX and for all our other systems.

LHX will be the first helicopter development program that begins with the operator using not only extensive engineering efforts, but advanced simulation techniques. A major benefit of up-front simulation is that it will generate a broad data base for use in building the LHX prototype combat mission simulator. The simulator will be built in time to train pilots during development and operation testing.

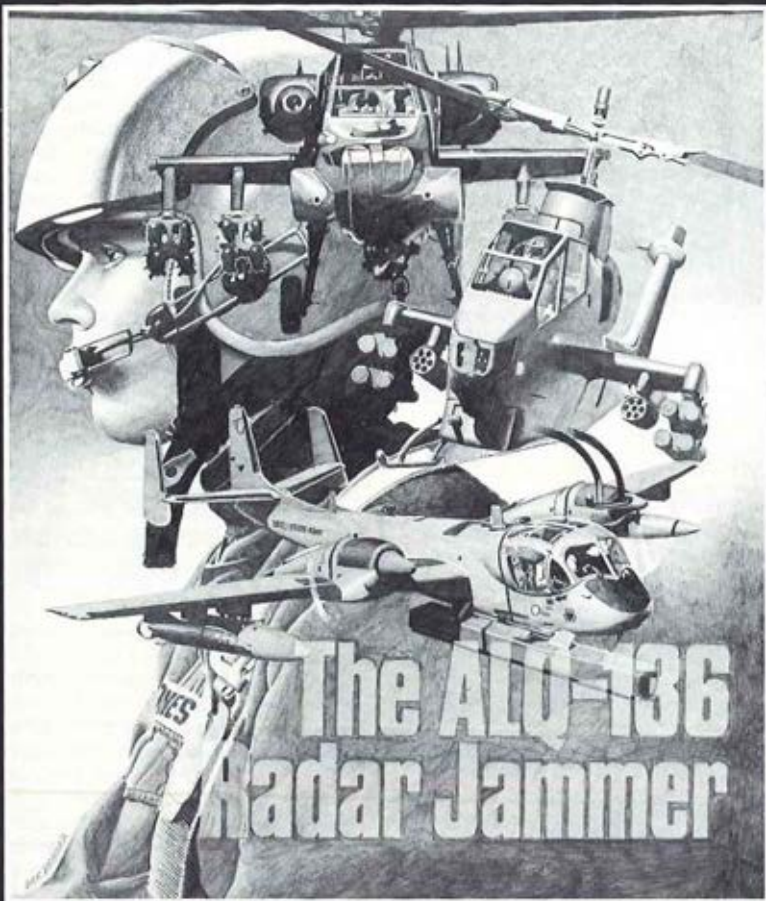

We'll deliver the first full scale production training simulator about one year prior to the time that we will equip the first unit. Building training devices ahead of, or concurrently, with the systems they support is another of our acquisition missions. I think you will agree that this makes good sense.

"It is imperative that we get the best possible buy for every dollar that we spend."

Because of the number and complexity of the items we must buy, it is imperative that we get the best possible buy for every dollar that we spend. Competition in the acquisition process, coupled with improved pricing practices, can effectively assist us in accomplishing this critical objective. From the very start of the LHX program we have mandated that competition would be carried all the way through the acquisition process to the end of production.

Any skepticism towards this approach has disappeared and now this concept is a basic objective of the program. Now, we have two sources for the engine and two sources for the airframe. The real significant aspect is competition in tiers below the prime contractor level. Also, we are requiring competition for all the major components and parts.

We, and our industry partners, are in this thing together. With imagination and innovation on both our parts we are going achieve the true Army of Excellence this country needs and deserves. We must, and we will succeed. I am absolutely confident that your Army is capable of doing this. ■■■

Outstanding Aviation Unit

210th Combat Aviation Battalion, Fort Kobbe, Panama

Remarks of General Richard H. Thompson, Commanding General, US Army Materiel Command:

I've been asked tonight to assist in recognizing the unit which has been voted the "Outstanding Aviation Unit of the Year" and I guess that's really the fun part of what I've been asked to do.

Here I'm referring to the 210th Combat Aviation Battalion of the 193rd Infantry Brigade located in Panama.

The 210th is being recognized for its outstanding support of military and civic missions in Central and South America. Throughout ten countries and over international waters, the battalion flew many diverse missions during the past year. Some of its unique and demanding missions include:

The support of joint Latin American military exercises with Ecuador, Columbia, Panama, Honduras, Uruguay, and El Salvador.

Numerous night jungle air assaults, using night vision goggles while supporting the jungle operations training center at Fort Sherman, Panama.

Night aerial reconnaissance in support of narcotics distribution crackdowns by both the Costa Rican and Columbian governments.

Search and rescue operations over land and sea, including rescue of a lost soldier on Toboga Island off the coast of Panama and recovery of a crashed Honduras helicopter from the jungle by using a CH-47 external sling method.

Deck landing training and support to the USS Deyo and USS Iowa.

High altitude training and support in Costa Rica.

Aircraft maintenance training and support to the Air Forces of Guatemala, Panama, Columbia, and the Puerto Rico National Guard.

Humanitarian assistance support to civic action projects throughout Central America and to medical readiness training exercises in Honduras and Panama.

The 210th Battalion was required to operate simultaneously in as many as five countries and always completed its mission in a timely, professional and, above all, safe manner.

A demanding environment

In these countries where travel is difficult, if not impossible, except by air, the 210th flew seven different aircraft from sea level to mountainous terrain and over dense jungle for over 10,000 accident-free hours.

The 210th Combat Aviation Battalion epitomizes the essence of Army Aviation professionalism, and justly deserves to be recognized as the Army's "Outstanding Aviation Unit of 1984".

And, now, ladies and gentlemen, on behalf of the Department of the Army, Major General Smith, and the entire Association membership, it is a great honor for me to introduce Lieutenant Colonel Theodore Duck, commander of the 210th and representing the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the 210th, First Sergeant Lorenzo Osorio. ■■■■

Remarks of Lieutenant Colonel Theodore A. Duck, Commander, "Outstanding Aviation Unit for 1984":

General Thompson, General Smith, ladies and gentlemen, members of the Association, and fellow aviators.

It is indeed an honor to be standing here before you this evening representing the 210th Combat Aviation Battalion, and from each member of the 210th, from the team, we express our deepest appreciation for this Award.

At the same time, we in the 210th are aware that wherever we fly, wherever we operate in Central and South America, along with this Award comes a new challenge and a new responsibility . . . and that's to maintain the standards of excellence of this organization and of US Army Aviation. I pledge to you that we will do that.

Once again, please accept our deepest appreciation from the 210th Combat Aviation Battalion. Thank you. ■■■■

75 YEARS AGO — The history making first flight by an Army pilot in an Army-owned airplane was re-created earlier this year near the spot where it occurred at Ft. Sam Houston in San Antonio, Texas, on March 2, 1910.

On that day, First Lieutenant Benjamin Foulois (later a Major General in the U.S. Air Force) made his first solo flight and his first landing in Army Aeroplane No. 1, a Wright Flyer just purchased by the Army.

The flight was re-enacted by retired airline pilot Lea Abbott, 77, in his 1910 Curtiss Pusher biplane replica, before a crowd of 1,500 people in a celebration which was narrated by Colonel Engle Scott, President of the AAAA Alamo Chapter.

McClellan Safety Award

CW4 Ralph V. Tolbert, 6th Cavalry Brigade (Air Combat)

Remarks of the Honorable Howard E. Haugerud, President of the McClellan Foundation:

Mr. President, General Thompson, Army Aviators, and friends of Army Aviation. Chief Warrant Officer Ralph V. Tolbert, this year's recipient of the "McClellan Aviation Safety Award", follows in the winged footsteps of what has become a long column of distinguished military personnel and Department of the Army civilians who have won this recognition.

While the narrative of nomination is replete with statistics detailing his specific efforts and accomplishments, I find it difficult to improve on the words of Colonel Jack Turecek, the President of the Fort Hood Chapter of this Association and Lieutenant General W.F. Ulmer, Commander of Fort Hood and III Corps.

Colonel Turecek wrote: "His selection for the "James H. McClellan Aviation Safety Award" Award would be most deserved. No safety officer at Fort Hood, or any of the many I have observed in my 20 years of aviation duty, more closely epitomizes what a commander desires and needs in his Aviation Safety Technician. He is without question the best in his profession."

General Ulmer, in his endorsement, added: "Chief Warrant Officer Tolbert has contributed immeasurably to the Aviation esprit, combat readiness, and safety record of III Corps and Fort Hood. He is Fort Hood's best and I strongly recommend him to be the Army's representative."

It is, therefore, with pleasure and gratitude for a job well done that I ask CW4 Tolbert to come forward to accept our thanks, appreciation, and the AAAA's "McClellan Aviation Safety Award for 1985" IIII

Remarks of Chief Warrant Officer (W4) Ralph V. Tolbert, "James H. McClellan Aviation Safety Award" Winner:

Fellow Army Aviation Association members — I am truly overwhelmed. I wish that I could stand here before you this evening and tell you that safety in Army Aviation is as simple as one person working hard, but, of course, we know that's not true.

So, obviously, there's a reason why the 6th Cavalry Brigade has been successful and that involves more than any single accomplishment that I may have contributed.

To Colonel Turecek in command of the 6th Cavalry Brigade: If it were not for your genuinely sincere concern and command support for the aviation safety program, I can assure you there would be no safety program.

And lastly, I would like to address my fellow members of the 6th Cavalry Brigade — those soldiers who serve with me: You are the true recipients of this Award. It is through your single-minded effort and devotion that we have experienced the success that we have. Quite simply, I would like to say, "Ya done good. Let's keep it up." Thank you. IIII

Army Aviator of the Year

Colonel Robert L. Stewart, NASA, Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center

Remarks of Lieutenant General Charles W. Bagnal, Deputy Commanding General, USA Training & Doctrine Command:

Mr. Presidents, past and future, and by that I'm talking about the past Presidents of the Association who are here this evening; the future Presidents who are out there; the Presidents and Chief Executive officers of our various corporations who are providing us great technology today; and all of you lieutenants and sergeants out there—it's my great pleasure to be with you here this evening.

I came into Army Aviation in 1957, joined the Association at that time as a lieutenant, and it's nice to come back in that same capacity 29 years later to have the opportunity to present an award. And I'm teasing my great friend, Jim Smith, who introduced me as Lieutenant Bagnal, and he knows that.

But people do make a difference. We all know that. Leadership does make a difference in whatever capacity we're talking about. Because things happen, or things don't happen. It's all a function of leadership. And all of you have made a difference and will make a difference as we look to the future.

It's our pleasure this evening to recognize an Army Aviator who has made a difference and who will also make a difference as we look to the future. It's no secret to any of us that Colonel Robert L. Stewart, the Army's first astronaut, is our "Army Aviator of the Year". All of you have all been provided with a synopsis of Colonel Stewart's accomplishments. I would just say, without belaboring the point, that Bob and four other astronauts, a little over a year ago went into orbit 165 miles high above our earth.

They had two communications satellites on board, and a West German-built shuttle pallet satellite also. And that was used by the crew to practice docking maneuvers during their space walks. Millions of people watched as Bob and the other crew members took part in the first space walks that were untethered.

This mission was historic. It was landmark in other ways, and it laid the ground work for retrieval of several satellites on later missions, which we didn't think was possible at that time.

But, more importantly, I think what Bob and the others have done in this past year will be recognized and praised in the future because of the total benefits that are to be derived from our space programs. We haven't even begun to recognize what they will be.

Many people in this room can recall the Buck Rogers comic books we used to read, and wondered if such a thing could ever come to pass. And they've obviously come to pass just in our short lifetimes and, as we look to the future, even more will come.

I had the privilege of being at West Point about five or six years ago when Mrs. Clare Booth Luce received the "Thayer Award", the first female in our history to receive this award from the Military Academy. She talked about the past, and at the same time she looked to the future. But one thing she said left a very indelible imprint upon my mind. She talked about change, and she said that in the 1880's, her grandfather, who owned the largest livery stable in Hoboken, was convinced that in the next decade there would be two horse-drawn carriages in each man's stable.

But, she said, we would have had to send for the horse-drawn booby wagon if someone would have tried to convince him that, in the next 100 years, people in London or Tokyo could sit in their living rooms and watch a U.S. President talk from the White House on television; that millions and millions of people would be tripping around the globe in flying machines; that man would be walking on the moon; and that surgeons would be able to repair hearts and, indeed, replace old hearts with new ones (and even more as we look to today); and that the U.S., at the end of two great wars, would emerge as the greatest, most powerful nation that the history of this world has ever known.

And all of that is just by way of saying that times do change; people do change; circumstances do change. But it does not just happen. It happens because of vision; it happens because of leadership; and it happens because of people working together.

Aviation has changed our lives. Army Aviation has added an important dimension to our combat capability. And Bob Stewart, we want to thank you for being an important part of that. As we formally recognize you as "Army Aviator of the Year" we want to recognize what you have done, and what Army Aviation has done, and what all of these changes portend for the future as we continue to look forward, with vision, to what may be accomplished. IIIII

Remarks of Colonel Robert L. Stewart, 1984 "Army Aviator of the Year":

The highest honor any professional can be accorded is one voted to him by his peers, and for this honor tonight, I thank you, my peers, the Army Aviators in this room.

In particular, there are several people in this room to whom I owe definite and direct thanks for providing me with the opportunity, one year ago, to step off of this planet. They are Colonel Denny Boyle, Colonel Al Todd, and General Story Stevens.

But most important of all, I guess, is my principal support troop for the last 21 years, my wife, Mary. Thank you one and all.

The award that I just accepted is very meaningful to me because it says right there on the plaque, "Army Aviator of the Year."

Regardless of what you read in the press releases, what you read in the biographies over the next few months, and in the past months, I am an Army Aviator. I will always be an Army Aviator and I'm very proud of that fact. I just have some very peculiar entries on my 759 right now.

In the next few years, you'll see the Army stepping back into the space age. And I use that term very carefully, "back into the space age", because the U.S. Army put this country into the space age in the first place.

I do want you to bear in mind that when you see this happening it is with the full intent of enhancing the fighting capability of the U.S. Army. We do not need to generate more 17,000-mile-an-hour helicopter pilots.

Those steps that we take in the future will be aimed directly at letting the Army fight the land battle in a smarter manner. I think it's a very vital step, and I'm very privileged to be a part of that step that we're going to take in the future. Thank you very much. IIIII

Aviation Soldier of the Year

Staff Sergeant Ronnie Garrett, 11th Combat Aviation Squadron, 11th ACR

Remarks of Lieutenant General Joseph T. Palastra, Jr., Commanding General I Corps and Ft. Lewis:

Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen. I take it as a real honor, which I am proud to accept, to acknowledge the contributions of an outstanding young soldier. It's appropriate in a year when the Chief of Staff has set forth to emphasize leadership for the Army, that what we are recognizing is a beautiful case history in leadership where it really counts — on the ground, in the air, working with soldiers in Army Aviation.

You all have at your places a brief thumbnail sketch of what Sergeant Garrett has done to earn that award. Let me try to put it in perspective a little, and tell you that as you look at a soldier and a leader, you want to measure his impact on the unit and his impact on the people he leads, and then take a look at just how far down the road toward leadership by example he is willing to push himself.

And on all three of those counts, you can see that Sergeant Garrett is setting a shining example for anybody else who aspires to leadership in this Army. He is the epitomy of the professional, dedicated, non-commissioned officer who is a cornerstone of what we do in the Army.

If you look at our principal opponent in the world today, the Red Army and wonder what one of the key differences is that will give us a qualitative edge should we ever have to exercise that competition for real, you're not going to find that much of a qualitative edge in their commissioned ranks. That shouldn't come as a great surprise to anybody because they do a good job over there of educating and training their commissioned corps. Where you are going to find a significant qualitative edge is in our non-commissioned corps, because they don't have anything that would even remotely resemble the NCO of the American Army.

Sergeant Garrett comes by his talents pretty honestly because my predecessor at I Corps two years ago, Lieutenant General John Brandenburg, stood in front of this Association's Convention and presented the "Aviation Soldier of the Year Award" to a Platoon Sergeant from the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, Sergeant Boese. Oddly enough in his very brief career, Sergeant Garrett earned his spurs under Sergeant Boese's guidance.

When you stop and think that Sergeant Garrett has been in the Army less than seven years, that he entered the Army in August of '78 at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., and that in addition to his accomplishments that have been laid out in that small pamphlet, he has also, in a 16-month period of time, earned an Associate Degree from the University of Maryland.

The man is a remarkable example of what dedication and talent, and the highest possible motivation, will do. We're very fortunate to have somebody like that in the U.S. Army, and, particularly, representing Army Aviation.

I'd like to tell you that I am fairly confident that whether or not one of his people gets picked down the road for "Aviation Soldier of the Year" or not, he will have produced, under his tutelage, those kinds of soldiers. His impact on the unit has been very obvious. His commander has written him up as being largely responsible for the astounding (well over 80%) operational readiness rate obtained during the period when, technically, that organization should have been given a USR rating of C-5: undergoing reorganization to the J series MTO&E.

His impact on his soldiers has been enormous. In addition to the skill qualification test training and preparation that he engaged in that produced the kind of percentages that are absolutely mind boggling (96% average score in his platoon, 92% lowest score) and the fact that he personally maxed that SQT test with 100%, his leadership by example has been enough to affect all the other people around him.

Fox Troop, 11th Squadron, 11th ACR, enjoys a professional reputation as one of the best the Army has to offer, and you don't have to look beyond Sergeant Garrett to find out why.

If you use the words of his commander, you can just about sum it up and say he is what an NCO should be, a leader, and a soldier's soldier. It is with a great deal of personal and professional pleasure that I ask Sergeant Garrett to come up and accept the Aviation Soldier of the Year Award. ■■■■

Remarks of Staff Sergeant Ronnie Garrett, 1984 "Aviation Soldier of the Year".

General Thompson, General Smith, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen: I would like to thank the Army Aviation Association of America for selecting me as a recipient of this coveted award.

An award of this magnitude is not the result of individual accomplishments. Rather it is the result of a team effort: good officers, non-commissioned officers, and soldiers working together as a team.

I would like to thank the members of Fox Troop in the 11th Combat Aviation Squadron, for continually challenging themselves to exceed the standards by which we are evaluated and for subordinating personal goals to overall mission accomplishment.

We in the Black Horse Regiment consider it a privilege rather than a duty to serve on the frontier of freedom.

I would like to thank my wife, Sandra, for her support and understanding in accepting that the life of a soldier isn't a 9 to 5 job. In closing, I would like to dedicate this award to my soldiers, and all of the soldiers out there in the trenches making things happen for Army Aviation. Thank you. ■■■■

DAC of the Year

Robert D. Robbins, U.S. Army Aviation Engineering Flight Activity

Remarks of Major General Orlando E. Gonzales, Commanding General, US Army Aviation Systems Command:

Ladies and gentlemen. This evening we are honoring one the US Army Aviation Systems Command's finest professionals - a man who is an inspiration to all of us. That man is Department of Army Civilian employee, Robert D. Robbins, an experimental test pilot with the US Army Aviation Engineering Flight Activity at Edwards AFB, Calif.

Mr. Robbins is to receive the AAAA's "Department of the Army Civilian Award", and I feel extremely privileged to be the individual asked to make the presentation.

Before I do that, however, I want to share some information with you about Bob, and tell you some of the reasons he was selected to be the recipient of this prestigious honor.

Robert D. Robbins was born in March, 1948, in Rocky Mountain, N.C. He graduated from N.C. State University in 1970 with a B.S. Degree in Engineering, and was commissioned that same year as a Second Lieutenant in the US Army.

Following attendance at the Transportation Officer Basic Course, Lt. Robbins attended ORWAC at Ft. Wolters, Tex., and Ft. Rucker, Ala., graduating with honors in being third in his class of 91 pilots in July of 1971. He was then re-assigned to Ft. Eustis, Va., to attend the Aviation Maintenance Officers' Course and again he graduated with honors.

From December, 1971, until December, 1972, Bob served in Vietnam with two organizations - the 178th Assault Support Helicopter Company, a CHINOOK unit, and then with the 62nd Combat Aviation element in Da Nang. In Vietnam, he received the Bronze Star Medal, the Vietnam Cross of Gallantry with Palm, numerous Air Medals, and other decorations.

On his return to CONUS Lt. Robbins was assigned to AVSCOM as a mechanical engineer, and he acquired his fixed wing qualification here. He subsequently commanded the AVSCOM Flight Detachment and after school assignments at Fts. Eustis, Rucker, and Huachuca, Captain Robbins entered the U.S. Naval Test Pilot School at Patuxent River, Md., in January, '77.

Upon graduation, he was assigned to our US Army Aviation Engineering Flight Activity at Edwards AFB as an experimental test pilot. At AEFA, he served as project officer and projects test pilot on the first limited artificial icing test of the OV-1D, the air worthiness and flight characteristic tests of the OH-6A Light Combat Helicopter, and portions of the A&FC tests of the UH-60. He was also project test pilot for performance and handling qualities test for the CH-47D.

Bob ended his military career as a major in 1981, but he continues to serve at AEFA as a civilian experimental test pilot. In this capacity he supervises flight test teams for us composed of engineers, pilots, aircraft mechanics, instrumentation personnel, and other support personnel on a project basis during flight test programs.

A pilot's pilot

As I was going through his biography, I noticed something interesting that I would like to share with this particular audience. Ladies and gentlemen, Bob Robbins has over 4,800 hours of flight time, including 2,200 or more of that in helicopters, and 2,588 hours or so in fixed wing aircraft. He holds a civil commercial license and instrument ratings, and an air transport pilot rating. He's checked out in six fixed wing aircraft, 21 rotary wing military aircraft, and he's an IP in fixed wing, in helicopters, and in gliders. He is a member of the Society of Experimental Test Pilots.

Now, with all of that, what do you think he lists under hobbies in his biography? You guessed it! Of course, one entry — flying!

Ladies and gentlemen, it is my pleasure and privilege to present the AAAAA's "Department of Army Civilian Award for 1984" to a truly professional aviator and one with whom I am very proud to serve — Mr. Robert D. Robbins.

Remarks of Robert D. Robbins, "Department of the Army Civilian of the Year":

General Gonzales, General Smith, ladies and gentlemen. This is a great honor and I accept the Association's "DAC of the Year Award". I wish to thank the Army Aviation Engineering Flight Activity for nominating me for this prestigious award, and the AAAAA for selecting me as this year's recipient.

With many awards, the person who is recognized is merely a reflection of the people working behind the scenes and this is, indeed, the case here. I would like to express my gratitude to the members of the Engineering Flight Activity without whose support my accomplishments would not have been possible.

Finally, I wish to thank my real co-pilot, my wife, Deb, who continually supports my aviation career endeavors and can relate to the phrase, "Aviation is spoken here." Thank you. ■■■■

Outstanding RC Aviation Unit

40th Combat Aviation Battalion, California Army National Guard

Remarks of Major General Ellis D. Parker, Commanding General, US Army Aviation Center & Ft. Rucker:

Mr. President, General Thompson, Lieutenant General Bagnal, Lieutenant General Palastra, distinguished guests, aviation team members. It's indeed a pleasure for me to have the opportunity this evening to present the award to the "Outstanding Reserve Component Aviation Unit of the Year".

I was pleased to be asked for three reasons. First of all, in the last three jobs that I've held during the past 3½-years, I've had an opportunity on each of those occasions to work with the Reserve Components: the Guard, and the US Army Reserve.

I've visited numerous units in those jobs and I've become impressed with the quality of their readiness program. I'll just tell you that I wish each of you had the opportunity to visit not just the winning unit of the year, but the others. We have so many Reserve Component units that are doing so much with so little. Their maintenance record is equal to the Active Component, and the significant thing about that is they're doing it, by and large, with some antiquated hardware.

In addition to that, their safety record is one to be envied by all. We have Reserve Component units that have gone in excess of 13 years accident-free and any number of units that range from three to seven years accident-free without bending a jeep or an aircraft.

My honest, humble opinion is that of all the Reserve Component forces the aviation force measures up as well as any, and I think it's among the very best within the Reserve Components, and for that reason I'm proud to have this opportunity.

My second reason — the winning unit, the 40th Combat Aviation Battalion of the 40th Infantry Division (Mechanized), epitomizes the theme of this year's Convention — Teamwork. In addition, it epitomizes the "One Army" concept, and I shall explain that to you as I proceed through my remarks.

First of all, let me tell you about the composition of the organization. It's the largest Reserve Component aviation unit west of the Rockies. It has in excess of 600 people; a Headquarters and Headquarters Company; an Intermediate Maintenance Support Company; a General Support Company consisting of 38 aircraft; a mixture of UH-1's, multiple models, OH-58's; a CH-47 Company; a Combat Support Aviation Company consisting of 26 UH-1's; and last, but certainly not least, a Pathfinder Detachment.

The unit maintains 100% of their authorized strength regularly, and they do that without any difficulty whatsoever — and I submit to you that this has to do with the quality of the leadership within that organization.

I think that I should share one bit of information with you and we should acknowledge a feat that probably can't be claimed by too many units even in the Reserve Components. You are going to meet in a few moments a Command Sergeant Major who has been in the Army 24 years and has served in this battalion for his entire military career of 24 years — Command Sergeant Major Bill Selling.

Now that you have heard about their composition, let me tell you why they epitomize the "One Army" concept. This particular unit routinely works with the National Training Center supporting the Active Army Component. They provide support to the California Air National Guard. They provide support to the US Marine Corps and the USMC Reserve Component in the state as well. They routinely work with local and state law enforcement agencies. They have flown safely in excess of 60,000 hours spanning a five-year period.

Now, all of these things alone would certainly qualify any unit to be a strong candidate for the "Outstanding Aviation Unit of the Year, Active or Reserve Component", but that's not their principal feat.

Their principal feat is their performance during the 1984 Summer Olympics held in Los Angeles. Starting in 1981 the Commander of this unit and members of his staff began a joint and combined planning effort to get ready for the Olympics. They formed a composite unit with the elements of the battalion as it exists now. In addition, they had a company from the (Army's) 7th Division join them. They had personnel from the 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault); members from the Infantry School, Fort Benning, GA; and personnel from the 24th Infantry Division in Georgia. They had civilian contract personnel and in excess of 50 aircraft: Hughes 500 MD's and Bell 206's. They were 600 strong with 150 of their people coming from nine different states. They maintained an aircraft availability rate of 87% and flew in excess of 5,000 hours in support of the Olympics alone, incident-free and accident-free.

Who knows, perhaps the degree of depth and detail in their planning — that spanned from 1981 to 1984 — may well be the reason that the Olympics went incident-free in terms of any types of hostile acts.

I would ask you to join me in welcoming and giving a round of applause to this year's winners. The battalion will be represented by its commander, Lieutenant Colonel James C. Ghormley, III and its senior non-commissioned officer, Command Sergeant Major William J. Selling. IIIII

Remarks of Lieutenant Colonel James C. Ghormley, Commander, "Outstanding Reserve Component Aviation Unit":

General officers, ladies and gentlemen. This certainly is, indeed, an honor and a privilege. Our battalion, the 40th Aviation Battalion in the California Army National Guard, is truly a team battalion.

The remarks made by General Parker with respect to the Olympics prove out the fact that the non-commissioned officer chain of command is alive and well, not only in our battalion, but in the California Army National Guard.

Our efforts at the Olympics and our efforts in the field training exercise last year with our division caused us to fly somewhere in the neighborhood of around 7,500 hours over a nine-week period of time — all of it incident-free.

This award is a tribute to the pilots; it's a tribute to the rest of the officers of our battalion, to our NCO's, and to our enlisted personnel. It's on their behalf that I humbly accept this award. I thank the Army Aviation Association very much for selecting our battalion. IIIII

The Leich Special Award

U.S. Army Safety Center, Fort Rucker, Alabama

Remarks of Major General James C. Smith, Ret., President, Army Aviation Association:

The "Robert M. Leich Special Award" is named in memory of the Association's first National President and the Chairman of its National Awards Committee for 23 years. It is presented to that unit that has made an outstanding contribution to Army Aviation over an extended period.

This year's award is to be presented to the US Army Safety Center, Ft. Rucker, Ala.

The Safety Center is recognized for its sustained, outstanding contribution to Army Aviation in the field of aircraft safety and accident prevention.

From a modest beginning as the US Army Board for Aviation Accident Research, the Safety Center has been a strong and effective pioneer, especially in rotary wing aircraft accident research and prevention. In addition, it has been a leading institution in the Army's constant drive to minimize the loss of life and equipment from aviation accidents.

During the '50's, '60's, and '70's, the leadership of the Safety Center and its predecessor units consistently demonstrated a high level of competence in the promotion of safety in aircraft design and product improvements.

All members of the US Army Safety Center, past and present, can be justifiably proud of the many enduring contributions the Safety Center has made to Army Aviation. Its record of outstanding performance over a sustained period clearly merits its being named the winner of the Association's "Robert M. Leich Special Award".

I would like to ask Colonel Joseph R. Koehler, Ret., the Commander of the Safety Center during the last three years, and Colonel Terence M. Henry, the current Safety Center Commander, to come forward to accept the award jointly for the officers and men of the unit.

PREVIOUS WINNERS ROBERT M. LEICH SPECIAL AWARD

- 1973—34th General Support Group (AH-M&S), US Army, Vietnam.
- 1976—101st Airborne Division (Air Assault), Ft. Campbell, KY.
- 1978—Corpus Christi Army Depot, Corpus Christi, Texas.
- 1979—U.S. Army Aviation Board, Ft. Rucker, Alabama.
- 1980—U.S. Army Aviation Development Test Activity and all predecessor units, Ft. Rucker, Alabama.
- 1981—Applied Technology Laboratory, Ft. Eustis, Virginia.
- 1982—U.S. Army Engineering Flight Activity, Edwards AFB, Calif.
- 1983—Mississippi Aviation Classification Repair Activity Depot, Mississippi Army Nat'l Guard, Biloxi, Miss.

Remarks of Colonel Joseph R. Koehler, Ret., former Commander, USA Safety Center:

General Smith, ladies and gentlemen, and fellow aviators. It was a pleasure for me to learn that the Safety Center had been selected for this award. It was also a great pleasure when Art Kesten called and invited me to come here because I was the Center's commander during that period.

It's nice to meet with all of you, renew old acquaintances, and feel like I'm part of the Army again. As most of you know, I've gone from an active Army Colonel down to being the local hobbyist stationed in Enterprise, Ala., and I'm just loving every day!

If you're wondering how and why I was chosen to come up and make these acceptance remarks, I think I owe you an answer. (Col.) Terry Henry, the current commander, and I discussed this at length and we could not agree. I told him he should, and he said "No, you should." and finally General Smith made the decision. He said "Let the young one go up."

Secondly, there's the fact that after having commanded the Army Safety Center for three years, I know I have a lot of friends out here, but I also recognize that there may be some enemies out there as well and Terry thought it might be to his advantage to stand behind me.

I accept this award on behalf of all the employees of the Army Safety Center, both the civilian and the military force — the Craig Silders, the Harold Meyers, the Bill Carters, the Sly Richardsons, and the folks who really developed the countermeasures for you, the commanders and aviators in the field, so that we can reduce accidents, particularly in aviation, and throughout the Army.

Thank you, Quad-A, for inviting me, and be safe!

OUTSTANDING AVIATION UNIT OF THE YEAR—The 210TH COMBAT AVIATION BATTALION, 193d Infantry Brigade (Panama) has been selected in 1984 for its support of military and civic missions in Central and South America. Throughout ten countries and over international waters, the battalion flew missions as diverse as joint military exercises; search and rescue operations; training for deck landings, high altitude operations, and night jungle assaults; aerial reconnaissance for stopping narcotics distribution; civic action projects; and transporting VIPs. In these countries where travel is difficult - if not impossible - except by air, the 210th CAB flew seven different aircraft from sea level to mountainous terrain covered by dense jungle for over 10,000 accident-free hours. The 210th CAB epitomizes the essence of Army Aviation and justly deserves to be recognized as the Army's "Outstanding Aviation Unit."

ARMY AVIATOR OF THE YEAR—COLONEL ROBERT L. STEWART distinguished himself during 1984 as a mission specialist on Space Shuttle mission 41-B. Building on his distinguished background as a military aviator that included 1,035 combat hours in Vietnam with the 101st Aviation Battalion, and a tour as a primary instructor pilot at Ft. Rucker, he applied his skills to all aspects of Army Aviation. His expertise was optimized by attendance at the Naval Test Pilot School and service as an experimental test pilot. Colonel Stewart's superb aviation and technical credentials uniquely qualified him as the Army's first participant in the astronaut program. During mission 41-B, he made the first evaluations of the Manned Maneuvering Unit during extravehicular activities. These EVA's represented man's first untethered operations from a spacecraft in flight. In addition, he evaluated a foot restraint platform on the end of the manipulator arm, took part in launching two satellites, and was active in a multitude of crew activities, accomplishments that laid the groundwork for the retrieval of several satellites on subsequent shuttle missions. As the first Army Aviator to perform challenging missions in space, Colonel Stewart greatly enhanced the image of the Aviation Branch, and is hereby cited as the AAAA's "Army Aviator of the Year."

AVIATION SOLDIER OF THE YEAR—STAFF SERGEANT RONNIE GARRETT is recognized for his superb leadership and dedication to excellence as Aeroscout Platoon Sergeant, "F" Troop, 11th Combat Aviation Squadron, 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment. Knowing what it takes to motivate soldiers to high achievement and how to get a good unit to become an outstanding unit, SSG Garrett, in raising the level of competence of his units, developed and administered a skill qualification program that enabled his subordinates to achieve exceptional skill levels. Leading by example, he personally achieved 100% on the test and the maximum of 300 points on the Annual Physical Readiness Test. He led his platoon in attaining an operational sustained availability rate of 81% for a period of eight months while transitioning to a new series of MTOE. During annual gunnery and REFORGER exercises, a 100% availability rate was sustained for more than ten days. The impact of his performance on the soldiers of his unit and the unit effectiveness attributable to his professionalism and leadership earn him the award as the "Aviation Soldier of the Year."

DEPT. OF THE ARMY CIVILIAN OF THE YEAR—ROBERT A. ROBBINS distinguished himself by exceptionally outstanding service during 1984 as an experimental test pilot and project officer on several major flight test programs conducted by the US Army Aviation Engineering Flight Activity. As a result of complaints from the field, Mr. Robbins conducted a thorough test on OV-1 stall characteristics with infrared suppressors installed on the aircraft. In addition, as an expert on aircraft icing, he conducted extensive tests with a U-21 specifically configured with sensitive ice measuring equipment responsible for locating natural ice conditions, documenting those conditions, and providing airborne photographic support. The test results produced the recommendation that the U-21 airfoil section array (ASA) experimental icing flight test program planned for 1985 should continue as planned. Mr. Robbins has made major contributions to Army Aviation through the successful management and conduct of these important flight test efforts and reflects great credit upon himself and the Department of the Army.

JAMES H. McCLELLAN AVIATION SAFETY AWARD—CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER (W4) RALPH V. TOLBERT is recognized for his tireless and talented leadership as the Safety Technician of the 6th Cavalry Brigade (Air Combat) at Fort Hood, Texas. Even though his brigade experienced a major reorganization during the year, CW4 Tolbert was able to develop and put in place accident prevention and safety programs that gained the confidence and support of both aviation and ground personnel. As a confirmation of his selfless devotion, total commitment, and leadership, the Brigade flew 27,414 hours without a Class A or Class B aviation accident, despite the high risk environment of its air cavalry and air attack mission profiles. An equally impressive Brigade ground safety record is further testimony to Mr. Tolbert's outstanding leadership. His devotion to excellence and extraordinary achievements clearly indicate he stands among the best in the Army and deserves to be named winner of the "James H. McClellan Aviation Safety Award."

OUTSTANDING RESERVE COMPONENT AVIATION UNIT—The 40TH COMBAT AVIATION BATTALION, California Army National Guard, in distinguishing itself in all phases of its activities during 1984, is selected as the "Outstanding Reserve Component Aviation Unit of the Year." A dynamic, highly visible tactical organization that is combat-ready and has excelled in the safe accomplishment of all of its training and missions the 40th's significant contribution to the overall DOD effort at the 1984 Olympic Games capped an outstanding year for this professionally manned unit. Tasked to coordinate, control, and command DOD aviation assets supporting the games over a six-week period, the 40th put together and operated a composite battalion of 86 aircraft including Army assets from Ft. Ord; Army personnel from Fts. Campbell, Stewart, and Benning; ARNG crewmembers and maintenance personnel from ten additional states; and civilian contract aircraft and crews. All these diverse elements came together under 40th control at the Olympics, and this aviation task force performed in an outstanding manner in one of the most demanding operational environments short of actual combat.

ROBERT M. LEICH SPECIAL AWARD—The UNITED STATES ARMY SAFETY CENTER is recognized for its sustained outstanding contributions to Army Aviation in the field of aircraft safety and accident prevention. From a modest beginning as the Army's Board for Aviation Accident Research, the Center has been a strong and effective pioneer in rotary wing aircraft accident research and prevention, and has been a leading institution in the Army's constant drive to minimize the loss of life and equipment from aircraft accidents. During the '50's, '60's, and '70's, the leadership and staff of the Center — and its predecessor units — have consistently demonstrated a high level of competence in the promotion of safety in aircraft design and product improvements. All members of the United States Army Safety Center, past and present, can be justifiably proud of the many enduring contributions the Center has made to Army Aviation. Its record of outstanding performance over a sustained period clearly merits its being named the winner of the Association's "Robert M. Leich Special Award."

AAAA CHAPTER AWARDS

FORT RUCKER — The Army Aviation Center Chapter of AAAA presented its top honors at a luncheon meeting earlier this year. Certificates of Outstanding Achievement were presented to:

ARMY AVIATOR OF THE YEAR — MAJ Phillip L. Curtis, Chief, Combat Operations Branch, Combined Arms Division, Department of Combined Arms Tactics, USAAVNC.

AVIATION SOLDIER OF THE YEAR — SP4 Stephen P. Gamache, Academic Instructor, Department of Enlisted Training, USAAVNC.

AVIATION UNIT OF THE YEAR — D Company, 229th Attack Helicopter Battalion, 101st Airborne Division (Air Assault) attached to 1st Aviation Brigade, USAAVNC, and commanded by MAJ Michael D. Weaver.

DA CIVILIAN OF THE YEAR — James G. Anthony, Flight Instructor, Instrument Flight Examiner's Course, USAAVNC.

AVIATION SAFETY AWARD — CW3 Robert E. Houser, Aviation Safety Officer, Department of Plans and Training, USAAVNC.

INFANTRY OCS HALL OF FAME

FORT BENNING — Two aviators from the Army Aviation Center were recently inducted into the Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame located at Fort Benning, Georgia. COL Andrew J. Miller, Jr., who graduated from OCS in 1957 and is currently Chief of Staff at Fort Rucker, and COL Norman N. Ferguson, the School Secretary at the Aviation Center and a 1959 OCS graduate, have now joined the ranks of other Infantry OCS program graduates who have distinguished themselves in military or civilian pursuits.

The Best!

AAAA Honors its Top Chapters!

Army Aviation Association Chapter Achievement and Membership Enrollment Awards were presented at the recent AAAA Nat'l Convention's informal Membership Luncheon.

ALL SMILES!—COL Norm Ferguson, left, Aviation Center Chapter President, and CPT Stevan Hammack and MAJ Michael Dannaker (VPs-Membership) receive a $1,000.00 incentive award for winning the Master Chapter "Membership Gain Category" with a + 890 effort.

FATHER AND SON — MG Robert Molinelli (right) DCG 1st Army, CG Fort Devens, Massachusetts, and AAAA Aviator of the Year in 1970, stands beside his son, 1LT David Molinelli, a COBRA pilot assigned to the 2nd ACR, after completing a VII Corps border surveillance mission in Germany.

I was greatly honored by my recent election to the Presidency of our Association. I am following a highly regarded National President who gave unselfishly and extensively of his time and talents for the good of our Association and whose efforts culminated in and were rewarded by the best overall national convention in our history.

Let us together continue to excel. I, for one, pledge to do my utmost to continue his good work and, to the best of my ability, assist in the fulfillment of the objectives stated in our By-Laws.

On behalf of the membership, I express our thanks and congratulations for the tremendous contributions of MG Orly Gonzales, BG Andy Andreson, and the Lindbergh Chapter members that resulted in a truly rewarding, both professionally and socially, annual meeting. Next year's host Chapter — the Greater Atlanta Chapter — has a remarkable act to follow.

Our Association has reached new highs in membership and Chapter activities. I congratulate the many among our membership who gave us these results. I urge that you not rest on past accomplishments, however — but instead, add to these so that we, too, can be looked on as assisting the Army in capturing the great potential inherent in the Aviation Branch.

ARMY AVIATION 79

Just how complete is the coverage of

ARMY AVIATION?

Over 86% of the field grade officers in this field and more than 64% of its commissioned officers subscribe to this advertising medium. The staff feels that the remaining 36% read most issues, if for no other reasons than professional curiosity and a normal desire to follow the progress of their contemporaries.

ARMY AVIATION is the only unofficial publication that caters exclusively to the interests of those who participate in this segment of the military.

The key leaders in this field — the professionals in operations, maintenance, and procurement — support this magazine editorially. Their voluntary reports and articles provide pertinent information on many facets of Army Aviation.

Advertising placed in ARMY AVIATION will be read across the board—by today's leaders in this field, and by the upcoming junior officers who most assuredly will lead Army Aviation in the future.

The magazine, through expeditious, economical insertions, offers the advertiser a personal "direct line" to this entire market.
