Cover Depicts Past and Future

Our cover picture taken in the rotunda of Florida's new high-rise Capitol symbolizes Florida's past and future. The past is represented by the historic Great Seal of Florida, and the five satellite seals depicting the five nations that have laid claim to Florida at various times since 1513 — namely, Spain, France, Great Britain, Confederate States of America and U.S.A. The two gentlemen aft of the seal represent Florida's future, since it can be assumed that is what they will be shaping during the 1979 session of the Florida Legislature. They are Senate President Phil Lewis (left) and House Speaker Hyatt Brown. (Photo by Ray Stanyard, Tallahassee)

President's Message

Sheriff John E. Polk

Two Priorities - One Goal

Show me a Sheriff, and I will show you a man who worries about America's future. No wonder he worries. Every day, because of the nature of his job, he is constantly reminded that the American way of life is being weakened and undermined by drugs...by immorality...by corruption...by juvenile delinquency...by crime's prosperity...by the erosion of family life...and by indifference toward basic ethics.

His job makes him keenly aware of all the forces that threaten to destroy us, and fortunately it also provides him with opportunities to oppose them. Thus, it has been customary through the years for Sheriffs — working together through the Florida Sheriffs Association — to translate their worries into positive action.

A whole string of examples can be cited.

Because Sheriffs were worried about needy and neglected youngsters who were in danger of drifting into delinquency, they founded the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch, Girls Villa, Youth Ranch and Youth Fund.

Their anxiety about the antagonism between law enforcement officers and young people led them to develop programs that would create a friendlier, more cooperative attitude — programs such as Police Athletic Leagues, Junior Deputy Leagues, and Law Enforcement Explorer Posts.

Problems in the public schools prompted them to send deputies into classrooms and onto playgrounds with orders to make friends rather than arrests.

Many years ago the Florida Sheriffs Association helped the Florida Division of Youth Services to establish the state's first halfway house for young lawbreakers.

We cooperated with state officials in establishing the first state-wide training school for all levels of law enforcement.

We pushed for mutual aid laws so that all levels of law enforcement would be better prepared to deal with riots, natural disasters and other emergencies.

Currently we are working closely with Florida's Police Chiefs and State Attorneys to attain goals beneficial to law enforcement.

We are also involved with state and federal officials in developing a narcotics information network that promises to become an effective weapon in the war against drug pushers.

Our Association has a long history of cooperative action, and, because Sheriffs recognize that young people are America's most valuable resource, we have also been identified with many effective youth programs.

My awareness of this background has led me to set two top priorities for my term as President of the Association. One will be to do everything I can to encourage further close cooperation with all elements of the criminal justice system; and the other will be to provide effective leadership for all Sheriffs Association programs designed to help young people realize their full potential as good citizens.

I have these two priorities, but only one goal: to build a secure future for America.

Meanwhile, until that goal is achieved, I will continue to worry.

Survey shows Sheriffs are experienced professionals

Florida's Sheriffs are experienced, professionally oriented law enforcement officials who are strongly motivated to serve the public above and beyond their normal law enforcement duties. That is what The Sheriff's Star has been telling its readers for 21 years — and now it has been confirmed by a state-wide survey. Dr. Charles M. Unkovic, Chairman of the Sociology Department at the University of Central Florida, and Dr. Roger Handberg, one of his associates, conducted the survey and provided the following summary of their findings:

In late 1977 as part of a broader research project, the Sheriffs of Florida were surveyed as to their experience as law enforcement officers and their feelings about several topics related to law enforcement. The larger project involves a survey of five Southern states, a survey which has been expanded to cover all fifteen sunbelt states. In this paper though, we report only on the responses of the Florida Sheriffs.

Of the Sheriffs surveyed, forty-eight responded to the mail questionnaires. This relatively high response rate gives us some confidence that the responses here are in fact indicative of the attitudes of the Sheriffs as a group. Because of the confidential nature of the survey, we can only present aggregate percentages.

Initially, we queried the Sheriffs as to their professional law enforcement backgrounds. With the increasing emphasis upon the professionalization of law enforcement, we were interested to see if the Sheriffs followed along with this national trend. In terms of actual general police experience, the Sheriffs reported that most had had significant police experience prior to becoming Sheriff. Fifteen per cent reported between no years experience and four years experience, while thirty-nine per cent reported between five and twelve years.

Nearly half (48%) reported having in excess of thirteen years police experience prior to becoming Sheriff. This experience level compares very favorably with that reported in the other four states surveyed where the average Sheriff had about nine plus years prior police experience. Clearly, Sheriffs do represent an experienced group of law enforcement professionals whose experience predates their election to office.

In order to further identify their police experience, we also asked each of the Sheriffs whether they had ever held jobs in any of the following police specialties: general patrolman or road deputy (79%), detective (54%), juveniles (33%), field supervisor (46%), headquarters supervisor (46%), desk officer (23%), and lab work (6%). The percentages indicate the Sheriffs who reported such experience out of the forty-eight who responded to the survey. Given that the Sheriffs could give multiple answers, it is obvious that their police experiences covered the spectrum of law enforcement activities. In addition, 35 per cent indicated that they had had corrections experience prior to becoming Sheriff.

Other counties in this district are: Broward, Collier, Charlotte, Dade, DeSoto, Hardee, Highlands, Lee, Manatee, Monroe, Okeechobee, Palm Beach, St. Lucie and Sarasota.

The Sheriffs were asked to respond to several questions which were posed about particular issues in law enforcement. First, we asked about whether the Sheriffs had had good cooperation from the public in regards to their law enforcement activities. Twenty-seven per cent indicated that cooperation was very good, 63 per cent indicated good with only six per cent indicating poor public cooperation.

An overwhelming majority (77%) said that public cooperation was good except in relation to certain specific offenses. The offenses most often cited were drugs, gambling, and prostitution—the so-called victimless crimes. This finding was not unexpected given that law enforcement in general has had its greatest difficulties in dealing with those type offenses.

Over the past several years, the Florida Legislature has attempted to make punishment for criminals more certain and the rules less flexible for the courts. The Sheriffs were asked four questions related to those matters:

Table 1

1. Court decisions have made police work more difficult but not impossible.
 Strongly Agree - 27% Agree - 65% Disagree - 4%
 Strongly Disagree - 0%

2. Court rules do allow criminals to go free unnecessarily.
 Strongly Agree - 25% Agree - 58% Disagree - 13%
 Strongly Disagree - 2%
3. More severe laws would reduce crime.
 Strongly Agree - 17% Agree - 44% Disagree - 33%
 Strongly Disagree - 2%
4. More certain punishment would reduce crime.
 Strongly Agree - 52% Agree - 44% Disagree - 0%
 Strongly Disagree - 0%

In questions 1 and 2, the Sheriffs mirror the general disagreement law enforcement officers have had with the trends in court decisions — decisions seen as unduly favoring the rights of the accused over society's right to protection. The last two questions, though, get to the heart of the debate over stiffer penalties as opposed to more certain punishments. Traditionally, Americans have passed laws outlawing just about everything at one time or another. The difficulty lies in enforcing the law when the people do not agree that the activity in question is a crime. More importantly, there are many fairly severe laws on the books but the laws are never enforced to the extent indicated by the potential penalties.

Maximum and minimum sentences leave a great deal of flexibility to the courts — a flexibility seen by law enforcement as used in the minimum direction of misguided notions of rehabilitation. The more realistic view of deterrence is that the laws in force must be in fact used and used quickly and nonarbitrarily. The Sheriffs without exception hold to the idea that certainty of punishment is much more useful in repressing crime than severe though rarely used punishments or erratically enforced maximum laws. Clearly, from this perspective, the Sheriffs will continue their support for mandatory sentences and other devices which insure that the guilty in fact pay for their crimes within a decent interval.

In summary, Florida Sheriffs, like their brethren in other states, constitute a group of professionally oriented law enforcement officials. Individual Sheriffs vary tremendously in their views but the trend is clear, especially in comparison to the Sheriffs of several decades ago. As a group, they are experienced in law enforcement as indicated by length of their experience and the wide variety of assignments. Attitudinally, the Sheriffs are critical of recent court trends and appear to support efforts at increasing the certainty with which individuals are punished for their crimes.

The Florida Sheriff continues as a unique political-legal institution with unusually close ties to the community. This is illustrated by the fact that every Sheriff without exception supported the notion that his department has an obligation of service to the community beyond just that of enforcing the law. This attitude is what keeps the Sheriff's office viable in an age of increasing alienation from government, even at the state and local levels.

Walt does give a hoot!

PALATKA — If Sheriff Walt Pellicer didn't give a hoot about kids and crime prevention and pollution, he wouldn't keep "Woodsy the Owl" on his payroll.

But, Walt does care, and he pays "Woodsy" a salary to visit Putnam County schools with Youth Resources Officer Ann Crow. Together, Ann and "Woodsy" teach youngsters to "wise up" to the dangers of breaking the law and polluting the environment.

They also encourage youngsters to develop a friendly attitude toward police officers.

Walt said "Woodsy" (who is Youth Resources Officer Taylor Douglas when not in costume) and Officer Crow have presented over 120 programs to over 2,000 youngsters in Kindergarten through second grade, and the results have been very encouraging.

"In addition to putting on a very successful anti-pollution campaign," he said, "they have increased the rapport between children and law enforcement officers.

"I am very pleased with the enthusiastic acceptance of our Youth Resource programs by students and teachers, and I am especially glad to report that these programs have had a favorable effect in decreasing criminal behavior among local juveniles."

More emphasis on training

TAMPA — Sheriff Walter Heinrich has created a new Training Division in the Hillsborough County Sheriff's Department, and has appointed Charles J. Fisher as the Division Director.

"For several years we have needed a separate division dedicated exclusively to enhancing the skills and knowledge of the approximately 900 people on our staff," Sheriff Heinrich said.

"Modern law enforcement is a complex business, demanding a high degree of professionalism," he added. "It requires a constant process of education, both in the classroom and on the street."

Sheriff Heinrich said Fisher has had 30 years' experience in law enforcement and police training. Prior to accepting his new position with the Sheriff's Department he served three years as Director of the Hillsborough County Office of Emergency Preparedness, and prior to that he was Director of the Southeast Florida Institute of Criminal Justice.

He holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology from the University of Tampa; and a Master of Science degree in educational administration from Florida International University.

Now wives understand why deputy Sheriffs get moody

OCALA — Sheriff Don Moreland, who believes that strong family life is the key to a strong department, has given his enthusiastic approval to a new program designed to get wives of deputies more involved and help them understand their husbands' jobs.

The program, which was developed by Jayne Ellspermann, Moreland's Director of Planning and Research, focused on the problems that can arise in a law enforcement marriage and how to alleviate them. For six weeks the wives attended classes on stress in law enforcement, family problems, the history of law enforcement and firearms familiarization. Then they were given an opportunity to ride with their husbands to observe the daily activity of the Sheriff's department.

The wives participated in a variety of activities ranging from role playing to discussion groups. There were guest lecturers who spoke on topics such as gun safety in the home and the problems of stress in a law enforcement marriage. The activity that was by far everyone's favorite was firearms instruction. It was amazing how many of the wives who were afraid of guns felt more comfortable once they knew more about them. Several of the wives turned out to be pretty good marksmen.

After Linda Strow accompanied her deputy sheriff husband, Dennis, on patrol she had a better understanding of his job.

At the graduation ceremony the wives who completed the program were awarded certificates which qualified them to participate in the ride-along program. Many of the husbands were surprised to find out how interested their wives were in their work.

Sheriff Moreland said a great deal of the credit for the success of the program should be given to the deputies who encouraged their wives to attend the program. He said the wives felt a sense of accomplishment, gained a better understanding of their husbands' jobs, and also welcomed an opportunity to meet other deputies' wives.

Commendation for Sheriff Murrhee

GREEN COVE SPRINGS — A resolution of commendation passed by the City Commission of Green Cove Springs was presented to Clay County Sheriff Jennings Murrhee (right) by John K. Bradley, Mayor-Commissioner of Green Cove Springs. The resolution praised Sheriff Murrhee for doing an exemplary job, for giving the Sheriff's Department a good public image, and for demonstrating his concern for the problems and welfare of youngsters.

Improvements planned

CRAWFORDVILLE — Wakulla County Sheriff David Harvey said he is going to make some improvements in the county jail based on techniques and procedures he learned at a "Model Jail Seminar" in Boulder, Colorado.

Harvey's Chief Deputy, Steve Taylor, also attended the seminar, which was sponsored by the University of Michigan and held at the National Institute of Corrections.

Subjects covered included Constitutional Rights and Privileges of Inmates, Jail Management, Administrative Procedures, and Jail Personnel Standards.

Farm Bureau numbering system helps Sheriff nab beenappers

GAINESVILLE — The first major theft and recovery using a Farm Bureau-promoted identification numbering system was made recently by the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Department when they busted a ring of bee hive snatchers.

The 43 hives, honey and bees had an estimated value of more than $10,000. Only one of the four victims who had hives stolen had his hives marked with the 10-digit numbering system; but, according to Detective Dave Chasteen of the Sheriff's agricultural crime unit, that was enough.

"The whole key to our successful recovery was the crime ID number that was found," said Chasteen. Without it, Chasteen said, detectives would not have been able to show probable cause. After recovering the marked hives, we were able to return other people's property that was not marked and now the case will be able to be prosecuted," he said.

Dennis E. Emerson, coordinator of the program for Florida Farm Bureau (FFB), said it is appropriate that Sheriff Richard Wille of Palm Beach County and his detectives were the first to make a major bust using the system.

"They were among the first in the state to adopt the program and promote its use," Emerson said.

FFB currently has 57 counties promoting the use of the 10-digit numbering system assigned to individuals by their local Sheriff's offices.

The numbers are part of a national system that ties in with the National Crime Information Center's computer in Washington, D. C. Law enforcement officials anywhere in the U.S. can identify proper owners of stolen property within minutes using the number system.

"The experience thus far has been that thefts have been severely curtailed by those who mark their equipment and use decals and signs around their property to advertise the fact," said Emerson.

Chasteen sums up the success of the program. "If we can't identify it, we can't do anything," he said. "I've been in law enforcement a long time and so many times I've seen stolen property go back to the other than rightful owner simply because of lack of identification," he said.

Chasteen said media coverage of the recent bee hive recovery in Palm Beach County has resulted in a barrage of callers interested in getting and using their own ID numbers.

Beyond the Call of Duty

SANFORD — Aileen Heidenreich, a secretary at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, received an Award of Merit from her boss, Sheriff John Polk, for the extra work she did on her own time to help survivors of a murdered reserve deputy sheriff get a $50,000 death benefit from the federal government. The deputy, George Pfeil, 55, was gunned down December 29, 1977, when he walked into a pharmacy store while an armed robbery was in progress. His family was awarded funds under the Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act.

Sheriff's Help Was Appreciated

Sheriff Enfinger has new weapon

MILTON — The Santa Rosa County Sheriff's Department's ability to gather and evaluate critical evidence at crime scenes has been enhanced by the acquisition of a mobile crime scene search unit valued at $27,000.

Purchased with county funds and a federal grant, the new equipment will not only be used in Santa Rosa County, but will also be available to assist neighboring counties.

Sheriff Harvell Enfinger was enthusiastic about the mobile unit. "Each year thousands of criminals escape prosecution throughout the United States because physical evidence is not properly collected and utilized," he said.

"I believe with the proper utilization of this equipment we can begin to stem this trend in our area. I plan to leave no stone unturned in the utilization of this unit in my crime fighting program."

Good deed indeed

BRADENTON — One of the good deeds the Manatee County Sheriff's Department is doing for senior citizens is to issue official identification cards which are useful in emergencies, and in arranging credit or cashing checks.

The project is a joint effort of the Manatee Council on Aging, the American Association of University Women, and the Sheriff's Department. Each card contains an identification photo and a medical history.

Kudos from Customs

NAPLES — The U. S. Customs Service gave special recognition to Collier County Sheriff Aubrey Rogers and Deputies Byron Tomlinson, Robbie Kranz, Tom Storrar and Grady Johnson for assistance rendered in a big pot smuggling case.

The drug bust resulted in confiscation of 20 tons of marijuana, and conviction of 15 men on smuggling-related charges.

Another Sheriff Becomes Airborne

OKEECHOBEE — Sheriff Clayton Williams (right) joined the ranks of Florida's flying Sheriffs when he traded a confiscated DC-3 for a 1978 Cessna Skyhawk valued at $29,000. He made the trade with Tommie Hines (center), of Herron Flight Center, Sebring, Fla. Chief Deputy Edward Chisholm (left) witnessed the transaction, which gave Okeechobee County Sheriff's Department its first airplane. Five weeks later the DC-3 crashed and burned, killing three men.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH

The Executive Branch of Florida's government administers and enforces laws. Its top officials are the Governor, Lt. Governor and six Cabinet members. Each Cabinet member is elected state-wide and given specific duties.

Governor

GOVERNOR BOB GRAHAM

Bob Graham, Florida's 38th Governor, is an achiever from a family of achievers. His father, Ernest ("Cap" for World War service) Graham, was a South Dakota mining engineer before he built a dairy and land empire from palmetto and sawgrass "scratch" in Dade County in the 1920's.

The elder Graham became a member of the State Road Board in 1929; later served as a State Senator from Dade County, and ran unsuccessfully for Governor in 1944.

The Governor's brother, Philip, became publisher of the Washington Post; and his brother, Bill, was successful in dairy, land development and cattle businesses.

His aunt, Mrs. Ina S. Thompson, served as State Motor Vehicle Commissioner during the administration of Governor LeRoy Collins — the only woman in the Governor's "little cabinet."

His mother, the former Hilda Simmons, was a school teacher in DeFuniak Springs before she married Ernest Graham and moved to Dade County.

Governor Graham was born November 9, 1936, in Miami; attended public schools in Dade County; and began his political career at Miami High School when he was elected president of the student body.

At the University of Florida, where he received a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1959, he was never accused of maintaining a low profile. Alumni from the class of '59 will recall that he was Chancellor of the High Court, on the debate team, attained Phi Beta Kappa and Florida Blue Key through his academic and leadership attainments. He also served as president of Sigma Nu and Phi Eta Sigma fraternities.

He went on to Harvard University and received his law degree there in 1962. Four years later he ran successfully for a seat in the Florida House of Representatives.

In 1970, he was elected to the Florida Senate and demonstrated a talent for the art of lawmaking, especially in the areas of education and health services. After eight years in the Senate, he ran a successful race for Governor and became the first Dade Countian to attain that high office.

During his 12 years in the Florida Legislature many honors came his way. He was the four-time recipient of Allen Morris Awards and also received recognition from the Florida Jaycees, St. Petersburg Times, Tallahassee Democrat, Conservation 70's, Florida Wildlife, Sierra Club, Florida Association of Community Colleges and the Florida School Boards Association.

The Governor's many community services include his participation in the 4-H Youth Foundation, the National Commission on Reform of Secondary Education, the National Foundation for Improvement of Education, the Southern Regional Education Board, the National Committee for Citizens in Education, and Senior Centers of Dade County.

In addition to his professional status as an attorney, Governor Graham has been involved in cattle, dairy and land development ventures. He is Vice President of The Graham Company, a cattle and dairy business; and Chairman of the Board of Sengra Development Corporation, the firm that developed Miami Lakes. According to information released to the media by the Governor's office, Miami Lakes is a new town recognized as an outstanding model of community planning.

Governor Graham is married to the former Adele Khoury, of Miami Springs, and they have four children: Gwen, born January 31, 1963; Glen, March 18, 1964; Arva, July 25, 1967; and Kendall, April 30, 1969.

For recreation, the Governor plays tennis and golf. He also holds a private pilot's license. An aide said, "Bob Graham will be a gregarious, people-oriented Governor, and, he's not all work. He's family oriented . . . has a farm in South Georgia, likes to ride horses, and also reads for pleasure."

During his successful campaign for Governor he vowed to work 100 jobs to get the workingman's point of view, and the media gave extensive coverage to his on-the-job experiences which ranged from the Panhandle oil fields at Jay, to the South Florida tomato fields near Naples.

He has written a book about the campaign. It's titled "Workdays: Finding Florida on the Job."

Lieutenant Governor

WAYNE MIXSON

Tallahassee's Capitol Complex is familiar territory to Wayne Mixson, a Jackson County farmer who was sworn in as Florida's Lieutenant Governor on January 2, 1979.

Before he became Governor Bob Graham's running mate in the 1978 election campaign, he served almost 12 years in the Florida Legislature. For six of those years he was chairman of the House Agriculture and General Legislation Committee. He also served on the Appropriations and Rules Committees.

Prior to becoming a member of the Florida Legislature in 1967, he sharpened his political instincts by lobbying for the Florida Farm Bureau. He later became the American Farm Bureau's representative for the southeastern region of the United States.

Outside the Legislature his public service has included being named to the Governor's Council on Housing Goals, the Governor's Commission on Property Rights, and the Florida Migrant Labor Commission.

After he was sworn in as Lt. Governor he announced he expected to hold direct responsibilities in three areas. First, as the state's chief spokesman and advocate for the economic development of Florida; second, as chairman of the Governor's Tax Study Commission which is going to be reviewing Florida's tax laws and suggesting reforms; and third, as the new administration's liaison to local governments.

The Lt. Governor was born in New Brockton, Alabama, June 16, 1922, and became a resident of Florida in 1941. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from the University of Florida, and was graduated with honors. He also attended Columbia University and the University of Pennsylvania, and holds honorary scholastic standing in Phi Gamma Delta and Phi Kappa Phi fraternities.

He is married to the former Margie Grace, of Graceville, and they maintain a permanent home at Marianna, where Mrs. Mixson is employed as an English instructor at Chipola Junior College.

The Lt. Governor is a lay reader at the First Methodist Church, Marianna, and holds long-standing memberships in the American Legion (he served in the U. S. Navy), Florida Farm Bureau, Rotary, and the Florida Cattlemen's Association. Hunting and fishing are among his favorite hobbies. He said he considers working on his Jackson County farm a vocation rather than a vacation.

LEGIS- LATIVE BRANCH

The Florida Legislature, composed of the Senate and House of Representatives, is the law-making branch of our government. It meets annually in the Capitol, in Tallahassee, for 60 days. The Legislature also holds extraordinary, or special, sessions. The Governor can call one of these sessions. Senators are elected for four-year terms; Representatives, for two-year terms.

Senators in alphabetical order

Members of the Florida Senate are listed in two ways — first in alphabetical order by name; and then in numerical order by districts. If you are looking for a Senator and you don't know his name or his district number, perhaps you can identify his district by consulting the map on page 21. For more detailed information about members of the Senate consult "The Clerk's Manual." Write to Documents Division, Office of the Clerk, The Capitol, Tallahassee, Florida 32304. A single copy mailed first class is $4.06; third class, $3.66; book rate, $3.48.

FLORIDA SHERIFFS YOUTH FUND, INC., BOYS RANCH, GIRLS VILLA, YOUTH RANCH

Boys Ranch, 32060 (904) 842-5501

Will it surprise anyone to discover that the bronze and marble centerpiece in the rotunda of Florida's new high-rise Capitol cost more than five times as much as Florida's first Capitol building? The base, according to the State Division of Building Construction and Property Management (DBC&PM), is travertine marble which was shaped and polished in Milan, Italy, while the Great Seal of the State of Florida and the five satellite seals depicting the five nations that have claimed Florida's allegiance at various times, were cast in Michigan. The cost established by bid of Elgin Construction Co., Tallahassee, was $49,964, according to the DBC&PM. The five satellite seals represent (starting at the 7 o'clock position and going clockwise) Great Britain, Confederate States of America, U.S.A., France and Spain.
