

FUNNZ Foray Records List for 2016

Jerry A. Cooper, 4th Jan., 2017

Statistics

- 701 records added to the FUNNZ database (540 on the 2015 Foray)
- The FUNNZ database now contains 11323 records
- The 701 records represent 297 taxa identified to species (241 species on the 2015 Foray)
- 281 specimens were added to the PDD national collection (214 on the 2015 Foray)

Taxa not previously recorded in New Zealand or currently listed as absent

The FUNNZ foray lists should not be taken as evidence for the presence of a taxon in New Zealand. There are many reasons why some collections may be mis-determined whilst others will be genuine first records. Where FUNNZ collections are lodged in a national collection they may be re-examined and re-assessed. The status of names as they appear on the NZFUNGI2 website should always be considered the best available information on the presence/absence of a species in New Zealand.

<http://nzfungi2.landcareresearch.co.nz/>

Artomyces pyxidatus – Likely to be one of the indigenous Artomyces species, which are difficult to separate.

Clavulina cristata – Likely to be the New Zealand variant C. cristata var. zealandica

Coprinellus disseminatus – The NZ Coprinellus species that look like northern hemisphere C. disseminatus and C. micaceous are different. See <http://naturewatch.org.nz/journal/cooperj/6866-genera-and-species-within-the-psathyrellaceae>

Hydnum repandum – Likely to be the indigenous Hydnum crocidens var. wellingtonii

Lentinellus ursinus – The real L. ursinus does not occur and NZ material is probably Lentinellus pulvinus, or less likely Lentinellus castoreus or Lentinellus novaezealandiae

Mycena galericulata – the real version is yet to be confirmed in NZ

Mycena pura – this northern hemisphere name was probably used in a broad sense. In NZ we have a number of indigenous species in section Calodontes such as M. vinacea and M. fuscovinacea.

Ramariopsis kunzei – Likely to be the indigenous R. ramarioides, as pointed out by Ron Petersen.

Notes

A number of interesting collections were made during the foray.

The pink endemic Cheimonophyllum roseum was collected for only the fourth time and appears to be a rare species. Sequence data indicates it is not a Cheimonophyllum (a genus related to Chondrostereum) but is closely related to the moss-associated genus Arrhenia.

Grifola sordulenta, with a strong odour of marzipan, was collected for only the second time in NZ. It was described from beech forests in South America (a Gondwana species) where it is considered edible. It was cooked-up during the foray, and people survived. I didn't try it. I have an aversion to eating things with the odour of cyanide.

Cortinarius porphyroideus, the purple pouch fungus, turns out to have a number of look-alikes which haven't been formally described. They can only be distinguished by microscopic characters. They appear in the list under C. minorisporus and C. purpureocapitatus

Podoserpula, the pagoda fungus, was common on the foray. There was a morphological variant with compressed caps which seemed to be different to the common NZ form. Traditionally we have accepted just P. pusio var. tristis in New Zealand with P. pusio var. pusio in Australia. Variety pusio is said to have tiers of stalked caps laterally attached to a main stem, and variety tristis with tiers of disk-shaped caps and the main stalk centrally piercing the caps. Colour was also used as a distinguishing feature by Derek Reid with var. pusio said to be yellow-orange and var. tristis pink. However, many collections over the years have shown that colour is highly variable and cannot be used to distinguish species. Collections from the foray were sequenced to investigate. I was already aware that two other uncommon species are closely related to Podoserpula and currently assigned to incorrect genera. One is Cantharellus insignis (as predicted by Derek Reid) and the other is Egon Horak's interpretation of Hygrophoropsis umbriceps, which is not the real version.

Here is a simple phylogenetic tree of the ITS region ...

Cantherellus insignis PDD 97002

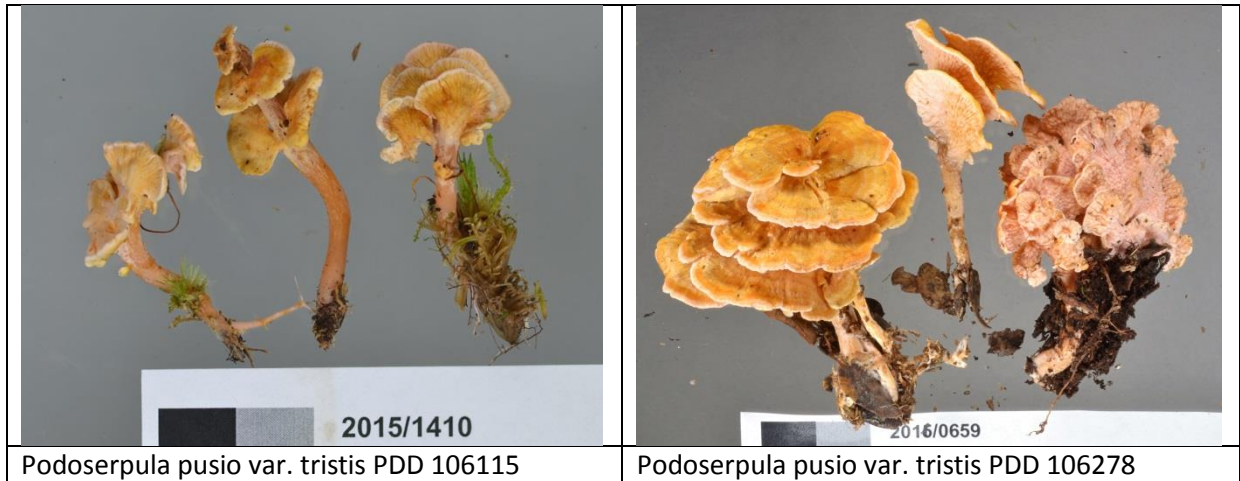

Hygrophoropsis umbriceps sensu Horak PDD 97077

Podoserpula pusio var. pusio cf. PDD 106279

Podoserpula pusio var. pusio cf. PDD 106277

Podoserpula pusio var. tristis PDD 106115

Podoserpula pusio var. tristis PDD 106278

The data quite clearly indicate that we have a species in addition to Podoserpula pusio var. tristis, and it is not P. pusio var. pusio. It is morphologically similar to var. pusio in having laterally attached caps, but they are strongly compressed.

NZ Podoserpula sensu lato

1	Cap single	2
1'	Caps multiple, in tiers down the stipe	3
2	Cap pale tan	Cantharellus insignis
2'	Cap brown, minutely felty	Hygrophoropsis umbriceps sensu Horak
3	Stem central and piercing flattened caps.	Podoserpula pusio var. tristis (AU + NZ)
3	Caps laterally attached to main stem	4
4	Caps compressed, without obvious cap/stalk distinction	Podoserpula pusio var. pusio cf. (NZ)
4	Caps not compressed, with cap portion and lateral stem	Podoserpula pusio var. pusio (Au only?)

Sarcodon

Sarcodon species are ectomycorrhizal and uncommon members of the Bankeraceae, along with Phellodon, Boletopsis and Hydnellum. A large Sarcodon species was collected on the foray. In NZ we are supposed to have S. ionides, S. thwaitesii and an undescribed species, and current sequence data does indicate three species. The collection from the foray conforms to the NZ concept of S. ionides. However the names S. thwaitesii and S. ionides are being used incorrectly in NZ.

Phellodon

In NZ we have the names P. nothofagi, P. sinclairii and P. plicatus, with P. nothofagi and P. plicatus possibly synonyms. However, like many other groups the sequence data indicate we have multiple species hiding under these names. A very useful tip for identifying Phellodon species was provided by Sapphire McMullan-Fischer on the foray. She mentioned studies of Australian species showing different species have differently coloured rhizoids in the soil around the fruitbody. On the foray we made a number of collections and preliminary observations show that is also a useful feature for distinguishing New Zealand species, although we need more collections which include notes on this new character.

Here is a simple phylogenetic tree of the ITS region ...

Below is a very preliminary attempt to place the NZ phylogenetic groups into morphological containers...

NZ Phellodon

1'	Caps with dark brownish colours	4
1	Caps with purple black colours	2
2	cap edges narrow, frbs in rosettes	3
2	cap edges thick, frbs in tiers, rhizoids olive. See also PDD 87389 with broad stipes.	P. sinclairii #3
3	stipe purple, rhizoids olive	P. sinclairii #1
3	Stipe brownish, with abrupt colour transition to hymenium, rhizoids?	P. sinclairii #2
4	Cap not silky	5
4	Cap silky, stipe encrusted, rhizoids mustard	P. plicatus #2
5	Rhizoids olive, stipe encrusted, cap perimeter white/brown, narrow.	P. plicatus #1
5	Rhizoids golden yellow, stipe bare, cap perimeter white, contrasting, broad (if spatulate then P. plicatus #4)	P. plicatus #3
