Certified Levy History by Unit, 2007-2011

Prepared by the Department of Local Government Finance
July 5, 2011

Key Findings

After a 30.7% decline in total statewide levy from 2008 to 2009, attributable to the state assumption of school general fund, school pre-school special education, and county welfare levies, the overall statewide total levy has steadily increased since 2009. For 2010 and 2011, the statewide total levy increased by 2.1% and 2.4%, respectively.

- Four counties have shown an increase in total levy greater than 10% from 2010 to 2011 – they are Brown, Hamilton, Knox, and Ohio. These large increases are primarily due to increases in fund levies that are outside maximum levy controls, like school debt service funds, emergency fire loans and other debt service funds.
- Of these counties, Brown and Ohio both had double-digit decreases from 2009 to 2010 so their overall levy increase since 2009 is not as significant as budget year 2011 would indicate.
- By contrast, only one county, Harrison County, experienced a double-digit percentage decrease from 2010 to 2011.
- By unit type, the largest percentage increases in levies are found in special districts (6.5% increase).
- Townships and redevelopment commissions both had significant decreases in total levy from 2010 to 2011. For townships, this decrease may correlate with the increase in levies experienced by special districts. As townships form or join fire protection territories or districts, the township fire levy is often shifted from townships to cities and towns or special districts.

Data and Methodology

Certified levies represent the portion of each unit of government's budget that is funded by property taxes. This total levy is then divided by the total base net assessed value for each fund in the unit to arrive at the gross tax rate. The figures used in this report are taken from each county's state-certified budget order; if a county has not yet received a certified budget order for a particular year its units are listed as "Not Yet Available" for the applicable levies. For this analysis, we have included all units that were active during any portion of the time series of the report. Thus, units who no longer levy property taxes are considered part of the historical totals and comparisons. This analysis does not include any state property tax levies

(State Forestry Fund and State Fair levies) for any of the budget years included, even though such levies were in effect through budget year 2008.

Special units encompass a wide range of units levying property taxes, but do not necessarily fit under other categories. They include airport authorities, solid waste districts, fire protection districts, public transportation districts, and consolidated city-county units.

It is important to note that beginning in pay 2009, there are substantial changes to the levies reflecting the state assumption of selected local expenditures, including county welfare funds, school pre-school special education and general funds, and a portion of municipal pre-1977 police and fire funds. This report reflects the actual levies for each unit in each year, so a large decrease from 2008 to 2009, especially in county and school units, is therefore expected.
